REYNAUD WINS BY ONE VOTE

New Premier's Cabinet Meets to Decide Fate

PARIS, March 22 (AP)—Premier Paul Reynaud won a one-vote majority of confidence in the Chamber of Deputies today and immediately announced a cabinet meeting to determine whether he would drop the reins of government he has held a little more than 24 hours.

The official vote was 268 for and 156 against his cabinet with 111 abstentions. The chamber now has a membership of 551, making 16 members absent.

There were reports Reynaud's seven Radical-Socialist ministers, including Minister of Defense Edouard Daladier, whom Reynaud succeeded as premier, would resign from the government, leading to its collective resignation.

MAKES DRAMATIC PLEA

Reynaud in his first appearance as premier pledged in a ministerial declaration "to direct all French energies to fight and to win" the war against Germany which, he said, was "aided by the treachery of the Soviets."

His government had only one reason for existence, he said—"to win the war."

"To win is to save everything," he said. "To lose is to lose all."

Only a few timid handclaps greeted the premier as he mounted the rostrum.

Similarly only a few responded when Reynaud had finished his declaration.

SCORES RED TREACHERY

Short outbursts from the right occurred when he spoke of "the treachery of the Soviets."

Vice-Premier Camille Chautemps read the same declaration in the Senate, where it was also received coolly, although the senators cheered Daladier when he walked in with other members of the ministry.

The Senate voted to meet secretly April 9 to discuss army and air questions.

Immediately after Reynaud's reading of the declaration of the lower house, Radical-Socialist Lucien Galimand began detailed criticism of the premier.

His statement drew applause

THIS SAILED!—A view of the stern half of the 8000-ton British tanker Imperial Transport as she was beached on Scottish shore. Vessel was blown in half by Nazi torpedo, crew abandoned ship and then returned to floating portion, navigating it 107 miles to land.

BRITISH SUB SINKS NAZI SHIP

LONDON, March 22 (AP)—The first torpedoing of a German merchantman by a British submarine and the increase to six of the Danish merchantmen sunk by German submarines in the last two days today marked the ceaseless sea war while Good Friday brought a lull in fighting on land and in the air.

The British submarine's victim was the 4947-ton Heddernheim which the admiralty announced went down eight miles off the Danish coast shortly before midnight.

Other European News on Pages 10, 14, 15, 18, 19

Of the 36-man crew, the Danish coast guard cutter Skagen rescued 25; one man was taken aboard the submarine.

Newest Danish losses, announced by the British to have been caused by German submarines, were:

The 3270-ton Christiansborg, reported torpedoed without warning; whereabouts of crew unknown; the 1206-ton Charkow, sunk off Scottish east coast; whereabout of crew unknown.

The other Danish losses, which brought to 13 the number of British or neutral ships sunk or damaged in the last three days, were reported yesterday.

They included the 1654-ton motorship Algier, torpedoed in the Atlantic Wednesday midnight with loss of four of the crew and one woman passenger; the 1229-ton Minsk, 11 men missing; the 2109-ton Bothal, 15 missing, and the 1153-ton Viking, 15 missing.

Authoritative British sources said that all six Danish ships, except possibly the Charkow, had been "torpedoed without warning by German submarines."

The Norwegian ship Svinta yesterday was listed among ships damaged by the air attack. Three seamen on another Norwegian ship, Tora Elise, it was disclosed today, were killed when the vessel was attacked by German warplanes Wednesday while she was traveling in a British convoy.

SHOOT DOWN PLANE

Crew members said on their arrival in an English port that 10 planes participated in the attack and that British fighters shot down one of the planes.

Two vessels damaged by German bombs in the air war which reached port were the British Northern Coast, 1211 tons, and the Norwegian Erling Lindoe, 1281 tons.

Another air bomb victim was named as the British Barn Hill, still afloat, although five seamen were killed.

HULL CAUTIONS CROMWELL 'NO MORE ANTI-NAZI TALKS'

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP)—Secretary Hull indicated at his press conference today that his reprimand of Minister James H. R. Cromwell for making a pro-Ally and anti-German speech in Canada closed the matter—unless Cromwell does it again.

Should the millionaire diplomat of two months' service repeat the offense, it was made apparent, disciplinary measures of a severe type will follow.

Hull said he had not heard from Cromwell following the reprimand and had no appointment with him.

GOING TO WASHINGTON

Cromwell, husband of the former Doris Duke, tobacco heiress, was at his Somerville, N. J., home, but Hull said his telegram to the American legation at Ottawa, the minister's official residence. It was said Cromwell planned to come to Washington today and that he would make no statement until then.

A tempest of congressional criticism and demands for the "unneutral" minister's recall had followed the speech, which was an emphatic condemnation of the Nazis and an expression of desire for Allied victory as a boon to the world.

Senator Walsh (D.) of Massachusetts, added his voice to the protests today, saying his views were expressed by a Philips Academy, Andover, Mass., professor, who wrote:

The letter was presented to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in the form of a petition, by Walsh, along with a protest from the Harvard University Chapter of the American Independence League.

Hull sent his telegram after receiving an official text of Cromwell's address and examining it. The State department then issued the following statement:

"The Secretary of State has examined the text of the address made at Toronto on March 19 by the American Minister to Canada, Mr. James H. R. Cromwell.

"Secretary Hull found tha. the address contravened standing instructions to American diplomatic officers, a: public discussion of controversial policies of other governments, particularly with governments engage." in war, without the prior knowledge and permission of this government, is not in accord with such instructions. Such public statements by our diplomatic representatives are likely to disturb the relations between this and other governments.

"Secretary Hull has telegraphed his views to Mr. Cromwell and has asked that, in the future, he observe the standing instructions."

Quiet Friday In Germany

BERLIN, March 22 (AP)—Germany observed Good Friday today in a quiet deepened by the war. Offices and stores were closed.

Sermons were not especially influenced by the war, although the tone in many Nazified German Christian churches in the last few weeks has been "fight to victory."

Since the start of the war pastors and priests have been avoiding sermons that could be construed as political—always a sore point with Nazis.

France Prays For Victory

PARIS, March 22 (AP)—Prayers for peace—but only after victory over Germany—were offered today in Good Friday services throughout predominantly Catholic France.

Jean Cardinal Verdier, archbishop of Paris, set the tone for the holy day ceremonies in a statement asserting that the nation's "calvary" would lead to a "regenerated world in which peace will be assured and lasting."

Blast Injures 8 In Connecticut

EAST HARTFORD, Ct., March 22 (AP)—An explosion in a test house at the Pratt and Whitney division of the United Aircraft Company injured eight men today.

Company officials, starting an investigation, said the blast might have been caused by an accumulation of gasoline fumes in a pit under the test house.

William Foley, 20, and Dalton Harrow, 33, suffered burns, and Francis Basinet, 27, had minor lacerations and two small puncture wounds, and were hospitalized.

10 Planes In Battle, British Flier Shot Down in Flames

AMSTERDAM, March 22 (AP)—A British pursuit plane crashed in flames on Netherlands soil today after an aerial battle between German and British fliers above the German frontier.

The plane fell in a marsh about a mile west of Lobith, where the Rhine enters Holland. Netherlands soldiers, because of the nature of the terrain, were unable to reach the wreckage immediately.

It was presumed, however, that all the crew were killed.

Witnesses said the battle started when four British planes, flying low, were attacked by six or seven German craft. They were uncertain where the fighting began over German or Netherlands territory.

The British planes quickly climbed to about 20,000 feet and three of them streaked off in a northwestly direction and disappeared.

Accounts differed as to how many German planes attacked the lone British plane which was brought down. Two German craft, however, were seen to drop a smoke curtain, and a big Nazi plane was believed to have scored a direct hit with a small cannon.

Police in Inquest Say Navy Man Was Drunk

Charles P. Ormond, 62-year-old secret naval agent who died under mysterious circumstances at Cambridge City Hospital, admitted he had taken "too much drink" the night he was arrested in Cambridge on a charge of drunkenness, police testified today.

The arresting officer, the "wagon" driver, the "wagon" officer and the booking clerk said Ormond appeared intoxicated and told them he had been drinking beer.

He did not resist arrest, was not roughly handled and showed no sign or mark of physical injury, the witnesses agreed.

TESTIFY AT INQUEST

The inquest was called at request of Dist. Atty. Robert F. Bradford and Sheriff Joseph M. McElroy.

The prosecutor and sheriff acted on complaint of Ormond's son, Chester, a Harvard law student, and other members of the well-to-do and influential Ormond family of Lancaster, Pa.

TELLS OF ARREST

The arresting officer, Patrolman Daniel J. Mullen of Cambridge, testified he found the elder Ormond lying semi-conscious in a doorway in Cambridge at, just after midnight March 12.

"I said to him, 'You've had too much to drink tonight, haven't you, mister?'" Mullen told the

Ickes to Invade Garner's State

WASHINGTON, March 22 (INS)—Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes, the New Deal's "hatchetman," will invade the home state of Vice-President John N. Garner next week to sound out third term sentiment in Texas, it was learned today.

This move by Ickes will be the first public step taken by the New Deal to undermine Garner in his home state.

"We waited a long time, but we got him!"

It was the collective voice of the five Langones—grocers—at their store in Main st., Woburn, today.

Louis Langone, Sr., 51, father—"Yessir, I knew he'd come back and we waited three nights and didn't sleep a wink. Right here's where we hid."

He pointed to a doorway, near the cash register.

Woman Dies in 14 Floor Hotel Plunge

NEW YORK, March 22 (INS)—A woman of about 40, who registered as Mrs. Dorothy Gordon of Atlantic City, N. J., plunged to death today from a 14th floor window in a mid-town hotel.

JESSEL TO WED BEAUTY, 16

NEW YORK, March 22—George Jessel, former husband of Norma Talmadge, revealed in a night club early today his proposed marriage to a showgirl beauty just turning 16.

She is Lois Andrews, the "oomph" girl of George White's 1939 "Scandals," who said she will be 16 years old Sunday.

'We'll be married soon," the couple announced.

Lois said her mother was flying from Hollywood today to give her blessing to the union. Because of her age, she said, she arranged for her mother to come here to give consent.

Jessel, "jazz singer" vaudevillian, comedian and for many years an associate of Joseph M. Schenck in motion picture production, recently was divorced from Norma Talmadge.

Previously, Jessel had been divorced from Florence Courtney of vaudeville fame. They had been remarried twice after divorces.

Dark-haired Lois made headlines last October when she was reported to have hurg a "shiner" on Producer George White.

THEN THEY MADE UP

Later, Lois got her lines back, and the two made up, according to the story.

During the "Scandals" production in Boston last year, Lois' name was linked romantically with that of Charlie Barnet, jitterbug orchestra leader and a product of Boston's night club world.

Second Son Is Born To Kin of Ex-Kaiser

BERLIN, March 22 (AP)—Another son was born today to Prince Louis Ferdinand, grandson of former Kaiser Wilhelm, and the former Russian Grand Duchess Kira, daughter of the late pretender to the throne of the Czars.

Both the child and Princess Kira were reported doing well. The couple's first son was born Feb. 9, 1939. He is the first male great-grandchild of the former Kaiser.

DEVIR OUSTED IN MALDEN FEUD

Temporarily on the losing end of a political feud dating back more than 35 years, former Mayor John D. Devir of Malden was ousted today from a $2500 job as clerk of his home city's board of street and water commissioners.

He was appointed to the clerkship several months ago after he had been defeated for re-election by his long-time rival, present Mayor William A. Hastings.

Last year's three street and water commissioners, all Devir appointees, voted unanimously to give the outgoing mayor a snug berth in the department.

His ousting today was by three new commissioners, appointed by Mayor Hastings.

They voted, not to fire Devir, but to abolish his job—which amounted to the same thing. They announced that the ex-mayor's clerical duties would be taken over by a girl secretary, Miss Agnes McGrath.

The Devir-Hastings feud began in 1905, when Hastings won a mayoralty fight against Devir's father.

For the past decade and a half, Devir and Hastings have occupied the mayor's chair alternately. Devir held the office for a total of 12 years. This is Hasting's third term at City Hall.

330 to Leave Hub on Cruises

More than 330 passengers will sail from Boston today on Easter cruises aboard the Eastern Steamship St. John and City of Chattanooga of the Savannah Line.

Carrying 35 pasengers from this port, the City of Chattanooga leaves from Pier 43, Charlestown, for New York, where she will take aboard additional passengers and then head for southern waters.

The St. John sails at 5 p. m. with 300 Greater Boston tourists on an eight-day cruise to Bermuda. The Eastern line steamship leaves from India wharf, under command of Capt. Louis Breckenbridge.

Freak Auto Crash Lands Girl in Jail

Climaxing a spirited clash between Judge Frankland W. L. Miles and Atty. William R. Scharton in Roxbury court today, Mrs. Elizabeth P. Herman, 25-year-old brunette, was sent to Women's Reformatory in Sherborn for violation of probation.

During the clash, Judge Miles was called "arbitrary" by Atty. Scharton for refusing to give the girl another chance and to consider circumstances in the case.

Ten months ago, Mrs. Herman was given a suspended sentence to the reformatory and placed on two years' probation after being found guilty of polygamy.

WARNED BY COURT

She allegedly had married Kenneth Brenner of Burbank st., Back Bay, a night club entertainer, Dec. 12, 1937, although at the time she still was married to Wilbur F. Herman of Somerville, whom she wed in 1933.

Brenner, following her conviction last year, had his marriage annulled, as a result of which her sentence was suspended and Judge Miles, at that time, warned her to keep away from men, particularly married men.

Through a freak accident between a bus and an automobile a few days ago, however, it was disclosed, according to probation officials, that she was living with Joseph McCarthy of Alder st., Waltham, a bus driver.

TRICK OF FATE

Driving a bus from New York to Boston, McCarthy struck an automobile, and police were surprised to learn that through this freak of fate, the automobile was being driven by McCarthy's "wife."

MRS. ELIZABETH HERMAN
Sent to Reformatory

Subsequent investigation disclosed, the court was told, that the woman driver, supposedly McCarthy's wife, was in reality Mrs. Herman.

Atty. Scharton pleaded that the girl did not know McCarthy was married. She has wanted a divorce, Scharton said, but cannot get it because of her polygamy record.

Judge Miles held firm to his intention to send her away, however, saying, as he ordered sentence:

"She seems to pull the wool over men's eyes."

U. S. Announces Huge Ammunition Order

WASHINGTON, March 2 (AP)—A $1,731,240 order for ammunition, which officials believed was the largest since the World War, was announced today by the War Department.

The contract for ammunition for the army's new 37 millimeter anti-tank gun went to the York Safe and Lock Company, York, Pa. A contract was also awarded the Joseph M. Herman Shoe Company, Boston, for black service shoes, $235,408.

Hope for Quins Dies, Only One Baby Due

MIAMI, Fla., March 22—Like Cinderella after the ball, 22-year-old Mrs. Emory Callahan dropped "back to earth" today after an X-ray showed that she was not one in 57,000,000, but just another prospective mother.

Rosy dreams of a struggling factory worker and his young bride were painfully crushed by further medical examination made after the sensational story that Mrs. Callahan expected quintuplets.

Emory Callahan

"Nothing other than a normal birth is expected," were the final findings of the X-ray plates, taken at direction of John S. Knight, Miami publisher, who earlier had made elaborate plans for Mrs. Callahan's medical care.

Investigation revealed the bride's condition had been studied by a fluoroscope at the original examination, instead of an X-ray.

Physicians said it was impossible to determine numbers of prospective children with a fluoroscope, by means of which a physician can look through a patient's body. However, the physician who operated it said he believed Mrs. Callahan might have a multiple birth, but that he did not expect quintuplets.

Knight said he was convinced the Callahans intended no hoax, but actually had misunderstood her physician.

The physician who made the first examination at a clinic said he could not remember her case, Knight said, but his notes showed he made a record of her "unusual condition."

"The doctor said he 'might have told her she might expect more than one child, but I'm sure I didn't tell her to expect five, even three,'" Knight said.

Mrs. Callahan will have a single baby, sometime in June, Knight said the X-ray showed.

THRONGS AT GOOD FRIDAY RITES

Hundreds of thousands of Greater Bostonians today solemnly observed the "three hours" commemorating Christ's crucifixion on Good Friday.

Veneration of the cross, stations of the cross, periods of meditation and observance of the Three Hours Agony were held generally in Catholic churches. In Protestant churches solemn devotions and elaborate union services were arranged.

At the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, see of the Boston archdiocese, mass for the pre-sanctified was offered. Stations of the cross will be held tonight at 8 p. m.

Impressive services were held at the Immaculate Conception Church, Harrison ave., South End, where 55 scholastics and priests were on the altar.

The mass was celebrated by the Rev. William J. Duffy, assisted by the Rev. David Leo and Scholastic Peter Dobrowowski.

Others also assisting in the services, of which the veneration of the cross was the most significant part, were the Rev. Edward Swift, the Rev. Robert Sheridan and Scholastics Joseph Valenti and Joseph Quinn.

The Rev. Edward L. Murphy, J. wp chosen to preach on the Seven Last Words during observance of the three hours agony at St. Mary's Church, Thatcher st., North End.

Others chosen to preach during the three hours agony service were the Rev. Thomas J. Fay, S. J., of Boston College, at St. James' Church; the Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S. J., president of Fordham University, at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, and the Rev. Leroy V. Cooney, D. D., spiritual director of St. John's Seminary, at St. Clement's Church.

8 PRIESTS IN SERVICE

An unusual service was arranged at the Mission Church, where eight priests gave brief sermons. The Rev. Francis W. Claire will be the preacher at tenebrae services.

Pastors of seven Lutheran churches participated in the three-hour service at St. Mark's Lutheran Church, while the Rev. Dr. Walter A. Maier was the speaker at services arranged by the Greater Boston Lutheran churches and held in the Old South Meetinghouse.

KINSOLVING PRESIDES

Dr. Arthur Lee Kinsolving presided at the services in Trinity Church, which were preceded by a sermon on the life of Christ by the Rev. Dr. Phillips Endecott Osgood of Emmanuel Church.

A community-wide service for Dorchester churches was held in the Second Church in Dorchester.

At Emmanuel Church, Dr. Osgood conducted services.

Impressive services rich in ceremony were held in the liturgical churches. The Rev. Whitney Hale directed the observance in the Church of the Advent, where stations of the cross and intercession will be held at 8 p. m.

Halt Business For Devotions

Boston City Hall was closed today, Good Friday, from noon until 3 p. m. to permit city employes to attend religious services. Departments opened at 9 a. m., closed at noon, reopened at 3 p. m. and closed at 5 p. m.

Most of the Boston liquor establishments closed down for the same three hours.

Many community stores in Greater Boston were also closed during the same period.

Only a skeleton staff was maintained at the State House, all other employes being given time off to attend devotions.

Holy Land Pays Christ Homage At Pilate Court

JERUSALEM, March 22 (AP)—Pealing churchbells and sunny weather invited thousands of Holy Land natives and pilgrims to worship today on the day of Christ's passion.

In the early hours of the morning Christians of many nationalities gathered at Pontius Pilate's court for a devotional procession along the Via Dolorosa, "the saddest street in the world."

With the war's concentration of thousands of British troops Holy Land disorders between Arabs and Jews have almost disappeared, and the air of dignity and orderliness here, where the Nazarene, burdened with the Cross, walked to Calvary, was typically of all Palestine.

The ancient shrine, Church of the Holy Sepulchre, was an animated scene of devotion, reflecting the abiding faith of Christianity in the permanence of the principles of Christ.

Though Europe and Asia are now burdened with war, the prayer was voiced in the Holy Land by pilgrims who followed the route of agony that the Savior's peace might rule the hearts and minds of men.

Few civilians were permitted to enter the Church of the Holy Sepulchre this year because it is under repair, but the service there lost none of its solemn splendor.

Tobin Meets Critics In Talk on Expenses

Disturbed over repeated criticisms of his administration and the city's expenditures, Mayor Tobin today met his principal critics in the mayor's office and discussed with them the city's finances and business.

As a preliminary to the meeting, the mayor had delivered by the school committee to his office three large blackboards, plentifully equipped with chalk and erasers.

Among those invited by the mayor were the following:

Richard J. Lane of the Massachusetts Taxpayers Alliance, Miss Margaret McSweeney of the Boston League of Women Voters, Ellerton G. Brehut of the Chamber of Commerce.

D^2. LOWELL INVITED

J. Murray Forbes of the Massachusetts Taxpayers Alliance, A. Lawrence Lowell, president emeritus of Harvard, representing the Municipal Research Bureau; Fred A. Dakin, chairman of the committee on municipal finance, Boston Chamber of Commerce, and Edward J. Frost of the Retail Trade Board.

John C. Kiley and Richards M. Bradley, prominent Boston real estate men; Herman C. Loeffler, director of the Municipal Research Bureau, and Daniel Bloomfield of the Retail Trade Board.

One statement that has irked the mayor has been one that he should cut his own salary, and this has been made repeatedly.

The chief advocate of the mayor's salary slash has been Rep. Eric Nelson of West Roxbury.

MAY CUT ONLY $50,000

Recently he was silenced when City Councilor John B. Kelly, pointing out that Nelson knew a legislative act was necessary to cut the mayor's salary, asked Nelson why, if he thought the slash should be made, he had not filed such a bill in the Legislature.

Thus far indications have been that no more than $50,000 would be slashed from Mayor Tobin's 1940 budget of approximately $40,000,000 —or a cut of one-eighth of 1 per cent.

Mayor Fiorella LaGuardia of New York is now conferring with his budget committee, and indications are that nearly 8 per cent will be pared from the New York budget of $643,000,000 for 1940.

In 1938, the year that LaGuardia started his budget slashing, the budget proposed was $642,000,000, but when LaGuardia got through with it, the budget had been pared nearly 9 per cent to $589,000,000.

Last year the same percentage was slashed off, and a proposed budget of $644,000,000 for 1939 was cut to $587,000,000.

Community Fund Carey Will Direct

Harry M. Carey of Providence has been chosen executive director of the Community Federation of Boston, succeeding Otto F. Bradley, it was announced today by Charles Francis Adams, federation president.

Carey has held the same position with the Providence-Cranston fund since 1934. Bradley resigned to accept a post as administrative head of the United Charities Campaign of Philadelphia.

SEC May Be Next In Congress Probe

WASHINGTON, March 22 (INS) —The powerful Securities and Exchange Commission may be the next New Deal agency to be subjected to a congressional investigation, it was disclosed today.

High ranking House Democrats —including some who forced the investigation of the National Labor Relations Board—have held conferences on the subject, with indications that a resolution for a special investigation soon may be laid before the House.

"Boston After Dark," by George Holland, appears every day in the Boston American.

Illness of B. C. Youths Probed

Physicians of the State Department of Public Health today were assigned to investigate several suspected cases of paratyphoid among Boston College students, according to Commr. Paul Jakmauh.

The possibility that the students contracted the disease at a banquet two weeks ago also was under investigation, Dr. Jakmauh asserted. He added that the disease was not contagious except by contact and that it was not as serious as ordinary typhoid.

He described it as the equivalent of a "bad stomach ache."

Dr. Jakmauh said he had assigned doctors Roy Feemster, B. Barrett Gilman and John Pointas of the communicable diseases division to examine stricken students.

HEDY'S 'EX' SUED OVER NURSERY

NEW YORK, March 22 (AP)—Fritz Mandl, former husband of Hedy Lamarr, beauteous film star, was pictured today as having been dreaming of home, fireside and even a nursery at about the time his wife was thinking of a divorce.

The situation was indicated in an action filed in municipal court by Walter Sobotka, former Viennese architect, who is seeking $500 from Mandl, former Austrian munitions magnate, for designs and sketches of a $25,000 wing which he said was ordered in the fall of 1937 for Mandl's hunting lodge in the Austrian Alps, near Vienna.

The plans specified a nursery as part of the proposed wing, Sobotka said, adding:

"I thought at the time he was expecting a baby, but I guess he was just hoping, eh?"

HEDY LAMARR

At the time, Mendl ostensib was on happy terms with Miss Lamarr, who now is the wife of Gene Markey, Hollywood producer and writer.

Mandl's lawyers have issued a complete denial of the debt.

CONNOLLY'S WIFE SOBS IN BAIL PLEA

Haggard and tired, Mrs. Mary Josephine Connolly, wife of the convicted former clerk of Suffolk Superior Civil Court, John Patrick Connolly, broke down and wept in the district attorney's office today.

Looking, according to clerks and reporters, as though she "had not slept a night since the verdict," Mrs. Connolly came to plead with Dist. Atty. William J. Foley's secretary, Leo Manning, that "some way be found to get John home for Easter."

BONDS STILL STAND

Since bond was set at $10,000 for her husband four days ago, after the verdict, awaiting the setting of sentence April 8, Mrs. Connolly has devoted her entire time trying to raise bail for her husband.

Today she had $1500 in cash and $9700 in real estate securities—but the securities, for the second time in two days, were not acceptable, since they were owned by several persons.

The bond must all be the property of one person, examiner of bails Robert Bodfish explained. Though Mrs. Connolly, nerve-wracked and apparently not able to hold back her tears, wept, the situation was not altered.

Connolly has eight children, Michael, 2; Paul, 4; Matthew, 5, Mary, 7; Patrick, 11; George, 15, John, 17, and Thomas, 19.

FOURTH DAY IN JAIL

As Connolly and William T. Conway, his former aide and fellow defendant, spent their fourth day in Charles St. Jail, it was explained if bail is not raised today they would be held over the week-end.

After a man is convicted and is awaiting sentence, bond must be examined in open court, and there is no court tomorrow.

Also, the mysterious "prominent Democratic woman" and the "wealthy Taunton man with $35,000 in real estate," both of whom were said to be guaranteeing bond for Conway, did not appear.

Capone Hides In Fla. Estate

His brother, John Capone, acknowledged that the ex-gangster had come to Florida from Baltimore, where he had been under medical treatment for a brain ailment.

Capone's Baltimore physician, Dr. Joseph E. More, said there "he is still ill."

The sheriff's office and police were advised by public attorneys that the former Chicago gang leader would not be required to register with them as a convicted felon.

F.D. Asks Red Cross Aid in China Famine

The appeal, which asked specifically for cracked wheat, came from the American advisory committee for civilian relief in China.

Pilot Larry Larson, Friend, Die in Crash

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, March 22 (AP)—Pilot Larry Larson and a young friend he took aloft, Wednesday, for a short joy ride, Adolph Jackinsky, 15, of Ninilchik, were killed in the crash of Larson's plane near Ninilchik.

Confirmation of the accident did not reach here until today.

Pope Steps From Slippers at Mass

ROME, March 22 (AP)—In a special Good Friday mass in the Sistine Chapel Pope Pius today stepped out of his slippers, knelt thrice, prayed and kissed the crucifix.

Thirteen shoeless cardinals went through a similar rite after Rafaele Cardinal Rossi, Camerlingo of the Sacred College of Cardinals, celebrated mass. Myron C. Taylor, personal representative of President Roosevelt, was among the spectators.

HERO CHASES NAZI FLIER TO BRITAIN AND BACK

By KENNETH DOWNS

International News Service Staff Correspondent

WITH THE FRENCH AIR FORCE, via Clipper—All the dramatic stuff of a library of thrillers lay behind the decoration of 30-odd French pilots and one R. A. F. flier at a wind-swept field up here recently.

"For having single-handed engaged two multi-seat enemy bombers, bringing one down . . . for having engaged superior enemy odds dispersing their patrol . . . Having been forced down, going up in a fresh plane, victoriously re-engaging the enemy later in the day . . ."

The orders were terse and economical of words as Gen. Vuillemin read them off before a small but distinguished military audience. But behind each of these citations were incredibly thrilling stories of combat in the skies at 300 miles an hour and more.

DARING WAR RACE

For example, one young officer who received the Legion of Honor and a kiss on both cheeks from Gen. Vuillemin, had chased a German plan from France to England and back again, sticking on its tail in a wild rodeo ride until he brought it down.

The officer was flying a Curtiss on lone patrol when he crossed the vapor trail of west-bound enemy aircraft. . He followed the trail, not knowing what, or how much of it, he would be running into.

HEINKEL IN WILD FLIGHT

He came on his prey—a Heinkel bomber. . The chase was on. They were over the channel now and by the time they started exchanging fire they were over England.

This is believed to have been the first air fight of the war over British soil.

The Heinkel had no stomach for the fight. After two or three screaming parabolas through the clouds, it headed east again.

The waspish little fighter, like an angry avenging shadow, swooped eastward in pursuit. As the Curtiss cut down the intervening distance again, the Heinkel dived to escape.

Down, down, and down it went until it was fairly touching the choppy waves below. Down came the Curtiss, too, shooting now.

They were nearing a French fishing port, and the Heinkel literally had to jump a couple of fishing boats.

Bullets were pouring into the German craft now, and just after it passed the rocky shore it went out of control and into a screaming crash on a rocky field.

NEW KILLINGS LAID TO PROFIT RING

NEW YORK, March 22 (INS)—As several more killings were pinned on Brooklyn's murder for profit ring by police today, prosecutors in two New Jersey counties attempted to determine whether the ring was responsible for murders in their districts.

At Elizabeth, N. J., Prosecutor Abe J. Davis reopened his investigation into the killings of two henchmen of Waxey Gordon, Max Greenberg and Max Hassel, in their elaborate hotel quarters there in April, 1933.

The Atlantic County prosecutor's office meanwhile began investigating a tip that the killing of Irving Mandel, a Thomas E. Dewey witness, near Hamm .nton, N. J., last December, may have been accomplished by the Brooklyn ring.

PREYED ON WOMEN

Dist. Atty. William O'Dwyer in Brooklyn, who "broke" the ring wide open, declared he had evidence that many Brooklyn housewives were enmeshed in the ring's activities through its "loan shark" sideline.

The ring preyed upon women who borrowed money to cover gambling losses from their husbands and then were unable to repay the loans, O'Dwyer asserted. The ring then forced these women to "put the finger" on big card games for holdup purposes, according to the Brooklyn prosecutor.

12 UNDER ARREST

Lazarus Black, 27, a bakery truck helper, was held in $20,000 bail as a material witness to the killing of Irving Penn, 42, a music company executive, shot down in front of his home in mistake for a Dewey witness. Bronx police said they suspected Black of supplying the guns for Penn's killing.

At least 12 suspects are under arrest in the police probe of the ring and a hint that the actual leader may soon be named was seen in a report that Harry Pittsburgh Phil) Straus, one of those held, was "talking."

POLICE AT INQUEST INSIST NAVY MAN WAS DRUNK

court. He said Ormond answered, "I guess so."

Q—Did you smell the odor of liquor on Mr. Ormond? A—Yes, I did.

SLUMPED IN DOORWAY

Q—In what position was he lying? A—He was slumped down with his back against the lower part of a door.

Q—Was it on the street level or were there steps leading up to the doorway? A—It was on the street level.

Q—Was it dark there? A—Yes, I had to turn my flashlight on Ormond to see him clearly.

Q—Did you see any marks on his face, any sign he had been a victim of violence? A—No.

GAVE NAME, ADDRESS

Q—How did you get him to the wagon? A—Wagon Officer Gallagher and I took him by the arms and helped him. He stumbled along on his own feet.

Q—Did you have any further talk with Mr. Ormond in the doorway after you asked him if he'd been drinking? A—Yes, I asked him his name and where he lived.

Q—Did he answer? A—Yes, he gave his name. It sounded to me like Carl Ormond. And he said he lived in Boston, as near as I could understand him.

Q—How did he talk? A—Thickly.

Q—Anything else you observed about his appearance? A—His eyes looked watery.

Q—Did he resist arrest or put up any struggle? A—He did not.

Q—Did you strike him or see anyone else strike him? A—No, sir.

SAW HIM IN WAGON

Q—Where was he when you saw him last? A—Sitting in the wagon, across from Officer Gallagher.

Patrolman John J. Gallagher, the wagon officer, was the next witness. He corroborated Mullen's testimony about helping Ormond into the patrol wagon.

Q—Where was Mr. Ormond when you first saw him? A—He was lying sprawled out on his back on the Cambridge st. sidewalk.

Q—How did he appear? A—He appeared under the influence of liquor.

Q—Did you smell alcohol on him? A—No.

Q—How were his eyes? A—Glassy.

2 ASSISTED HIM

Q—Did he sit up or lie down in the patrol wagon? A—He sat up, unassisted, across from me.

Q—At police headquarters, was he able to walk to the booking desk? A—Officer Lyons, the wagon driver, and I assisted him to walk.

Q—How far was it? A—About 18 feet.

Q—Any stairs? A—Yes, a flight of six steps.

Q—Did he fall or stumble on the stairs? A—No.

Q—Was there any struggle? A—None at all.

Q—What did you find? A—Papers, two keys, a pair of eyeglasses and a few small coins.

Q—Any wallet or other money? A—No.

TELLS OF HIS TALK

Q—Did you smell liquor? A—I didn't notice any odor of alcohol.

Q—Did you have any conversation with Ormond? A—When Gallagher and I were taking him to a cell he said: "Are you going to lock me up?" I said: "Yes; don't you think you're better locked up than lying in that doorway?" He said: "Yes." I asked if he was all right. He said "Yes" again.

Police Booking Clerk Mark J. Cleary testified he asked Ormond: "What have you been drinking?"

Ormond said "Some beer," according to the clerk.

The elder Ormond, who reportedly worked with Thomas Edison during the inventor's experiments with moving pictures, died in Cambridge City Hospital two days after he had been placed in jail on intoxication charges.

CITES LACK OF AID

Back after attending his father's funeral in Lancaster, Pa., young Ormond reiterated charges that Cambridge City Hospital authorities refused to co-operate with him in his efforts to save his father's life.

At the same time he charged that details of the case had been withheld from the elder Ormond's mother, because of the shock that accompanied news of her son's sudden death.

"My family definitely is not satisfied with the case as it now reads," said Ormond. "They can't fit the facts to the past knowledge of my father's dislike for alcohol.

"He was absolutely opposed to liquor, and never took a drink, not even beer, in his life, and we have contacted many outside personal friends who will testify to that effect."

The Harvard student also disclosed that G-men have been carrying on a quiet investigation in the interests of the naval department, which had engaged Ormond at the Charlestown Navy Yard in secret work on centrifugal machines and submarines.

Japs Won't Act To Stop Hitler

TOKYO, March 22 (AP)—Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita told the Japanese Diet (Parliament) today:

"Japan will not put any obstacles in Germany's way by joining hands with Britain or America during the European war."

Arita added that Japan was "certain" of the ultimate outcome of the conflict, but declared the matter was too delicate to explain further.

Supplementing the foreign minister's remarks, Naval Minister Admiral Zengo Yoshida asserted:

"We are going to dispose of the China incident with our eyes wide open to the world situation."

Earlier War Minister General Shunroku Hara had announced that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's Chinese army still numbers 2,000,000 men and that "the holy war" for "a new order in Asia" would continue.

DR. T. D. BUCHANAN DEAD

NEW YORK, March 22 (AP)—Dr Thomas Drysdale Buchanan, 64, dean of New York anesthetists, is dead here. Consulting anesthetist to many hospitals, he introduced in this country from England in 1903 the "midget cylinders" which made possible portable anesthetic equipment.

Reynaud Wins First Test by Only 1 Vote

The Radical-Socialists in the Chamber met in a parley before the Premier spoke and the majority of the members favored abstaining from the prospective confidence vote but decided to meet again before taking definite action.

"We want a war government," he told the premier. "Your cabinet does not meet our desire."

"INTERIOR MOVE" SEEN

There were murmurs throughout the chamber and Marin said military and diplomatic events were looming and "perhaps an interior movement is imminent." He was thought to be referring to what he regards as a danger that Socialists will return to power.

Reynaud faced the chamber less than 24 hours after the rapid completion of his government, replacing that of Edouard Daladier. The cabinet had given approval to his statement, promising action in the war against Germany.

The text of the premier-foreign minister's statement said:

"France is engaged in a complete war.

"A powerful enemy is transforming and concentrating all its human activity into warfare in order to triumph.

"Aided by the treachery of the Soviets it is carrying the fight into all quarters and working out all the blows which it is giving with a sort of genius for destruction that we certainly do not fail to recognize as not only awe inspiring but at the same time hateful.

VICTORY ONLY AIM

"By this fact alone the state of this war to the end is the whole stake.

"To win is to save everything. To lose is to lose all.

"Gentlemen: Parliament, exhibiting the national sentiment, has measured the terrible realities from every angle.

"Thus the government which presents itself before you has no other reason for existence and wants no other than this: To raise and direct all French energies to fight and win and to crush treason from whatever angle it comes.

"Thanks to your confidence and help we will accomplish this task."

PRAISE FOR FRENCH

"If it were necessary to have another comfort we would only have to count on the immense resources of our country and our empire. We would have only to look our admirable allies straight in the eye. We would have only to remember the valor of our people, the efforts of our workmen and of our fathers, the strength of our armies, the ardor of our soldiers and the bravery of our leaders.

"We would only finally have to think of the eternal spirit of France."

Before the deputies met to hear Reynaud's declaration, the Socialists, who with their 156 members constitute the largest group in the Chamber, met and decided to vote for the government. This had been expected.

OTHER GROUPS WAIT

The Radical-Socialists, second largest group, with 113 deputies, had not yet fully defined their attitude although the new Cabinet contains seven of their members.

Two Radical-Socialist deputies filed notice they would interpellate the government on the cabinet's makeup, the government's general policy and its intentions concerning the war.

Other groups also had decided to await developments in the Chamber before taking a stand on voting or abstaining.

The ministers met twice. After a private meeting with Reynaud at the Elysee palace they reassembled as a council of ministers under President Albert Lebrun.

ONE AIDE RESIGNS

Without making public his reasons, Jean Le Cour Grandmaison, resigned as undersecretary of the navy after being in Reynaud's new government only overnight. He is considered an "extreme rightest."

Reynaud's first big job as successor to resigned Daladier was to ease France past her first political crisis of the war by overcoming opposition which threatened his administration even before it was fully launched.

On his success or failure depended France's chance of getting quickly a stable government. His supporters expected Reynaud to survive the first test of strength an win a chance at least to try the "action and more action" which they said would his policy.

Farley Leaves Hub Democrats in a Fog

Confident of party victory but more or less noncommittal on other questions, Jim Farley, Presidential aspirant, was back in New York today after a hectic day of handshaking, fencing and sidestepping with reporters and Massachusetts Democrats.

The master strategist of politics declined elaborate forecasting, however, declaring:

"It's too early to prognosticate on the number of states the Democrats will carry in November, but—we'll win."

On the third term, the Ickes statement and other delicate questions, he either smilingly declined to comment or gracefully skated around the subject.

In apparent desperation, one reporter asked:

"Do you favor a return to the two-cent stamp?"

Farley, who is postmaster-general, replied with a smile:

"I'm for the continuance of the 3-cent stamp. A return to the two-cent stamp would mean a loss of revenue to the department amounting to $75,000,000 a year."

"Big Jim" also saw his presidential aspirations embroiled in an attempt to involve him in state politics with the threat from Labor to run an independent candidate for governor next fall unless he can get the Democratic party to present a united front in the state election campaign.

Nicholas Morrissey, president of the State Federation of Labor, and Kenneth Taylor, secretary-treasurer, told Farley that a big primary fight looms in the fall that will split the Democratic party unless he can intervene to bring peace.

Their objective, they told Farley, was to beat Republican Gov. Saltonstall with whom they are at odds over labor legislation, but if the Democratic party can't get together on this issue, then they are prepared to run a labor man as an independent candidate, they said.

Farley said he would be glad to urge all Democrats to unite on a state ticket.

Drinks 'Tonic,' Finds He's Taken Poison

After drinking a "tonic" for a stomach pain, Isadore Wiseman 28, of Bowdoin st., Beacon Hill, discovered he had accidentally swallowed poison today, according to police.

He rushed to the Joy st. station for help and collapsed. Although he is on the City Hospital danger list, doctors give him a good chance for recovery.

B. C. Communion Breakfasts Set

More than 4000 alumni and students of Boston College are expected to attend a series of Universal Communion Breakfasts Sunday, March 31, it was announced today by John G. Gill, executive secretary of the Boston College Alumni Association.

Breakfasts will be held in West Roxbury, Malden, Charlestown, Milton, Medford, Hyde Park, Lynn and Somerville.

F.D. Told to Go Easy Over the Week-end

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP)—The White House said today that the President's physician, Rear Admiral Ross T. McIntire, believed that if Mr. Roosevelt would continue his limited schedule over the week-end, he should be back to his normal, routine work day by Monday.

The Chief Executive's temperature was 99.2 degrees this morning, a little more than half a degree above normal and a little below yesterday morning's mark.

YOUNG FOUND GUILTY, FREED UNDER BAIL

EVENING AMERICAN, FRIDAY, MARCH 22, 1940

By MARJORIE YOUNG
Special Cable to International News Service

TOKYO, March 22 (INS)—Two months and a day after his arrest, James R. Young, Tokyo manager of International News Service, was released from jail today on bail after receiving a suspended sentence of six months' imprisonment for violating the Japanese military code.

Young went immediately to his residence at the Imperial Hotel. He will remain free on bail pending decision by the procurator (district attorney) as to whether an appeal will be accepted.

In passing sentence, Judge Sanehira Hotta found extenuating circumstances in the fact that Young is an American citizen "and America is a country where great freedom of speech exists."

The indictment on which the correspondent was tried embraced 13 points. He was imprisoned in cell 13, and his arrest occurred during his 13th year of residence in Japan.

GETS TIME TO APPEAL

Mr. Young, who was charged with violating Article 99 of the Japanese army criminal code in dispatches written following a tour of China, was given seven days in which to appeal the sentence if he so desires. In addition, he will bear the full costs of the court proceedings.

In reviewing the case, Judge Hotta said that Mr. Young was a man of considerable academic education with more than 10 years' experience in Japan and hence must assume responsibility for violation of the army penal code, even though he pleaded ignorance of its provisions.

CITES FRANKNESS

The judge added that Mr. Young should have known the code's provisions against "fabricating rumors" concerning the Japanese army, an offense which he stated was particularly serious in the present war-time conditions.

Although Mr. Young had offended against this code, the judge continued, extenuating circumstances were found in the fact that he was an American, a man of "outspoken frankness," and his work was that of a foreign correspondent whose duty it was to report the news.

Therefore, the judge declared, he had decided to impose a sentence of six months' imprisonment with a three years' stay of execution.

Directly addressing Mr. Young through a court interpreter, Judge Hotta cautioned him against repeating the offense in future.

This morning's court session was open to the public for the first time since the trial began. I was present along with a representative of the Japanese foreign office and William Turner, second secretary of the American embassy.

My husband appeared in excellent health despite 62 days of detention, half of which were spent in the police jail.

After being questioned by police he was turned over to the jurisdiction of the procurator and was removed to the detention penitentiary which is known as "Model Prison" and which is the recipient of an annual monetary donation from American churches.

While there my husband was allowed one visitor with an interpreter each day, but all conversations were recorded and filed.

(Editor's note: Mrs. Marjorie Young of Houston, Tex., wife of J. R. Young, manager of the International News Service Tokyo bureau, sent the accompanying dispatch today on the suspended sentence given her husband on a charge of violating the Japanese army criminal code in connection with articles written following an extended tour of China.)

How Do You Answer?

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

The first question asked by the census man is, "Did you celebrate both Thanksgivings last year?"

If you answer in the affirmative and show two wishbones as proof, you get a diploma. If you send in your passport picture you can get an old age pension when you are still in the Boy Scouts.

The farmers are doing their best with a neat bit of indoor farming in Congress. The weedbenders got another couple of hundred million dollars and a vote of confidence in their ability to spend it.

P. S.—The Republicans should nominate a Pinkerton and a Burns man. Just to find out where the money went.

Hint Nazis' Plan to Sink Queen Mary

NEW YORK, March 22 (INS)—A hint that the Nazi pocket battleship Deutschland may possibly have been given orders to sink or intercept the huge liners Queen Mary and Mauretania was contained in a broadcast from the German short wave station DJD in Berlin overheard here. The radio announcement, interrupting a program, said:

"And now, something special. Attention! This is for the brave crew of the Deutschland. Wherever you are at this moment: Success! And now we are playing for you boys the march Blaue Jungens (Blue Boys)."

(Editor's Note—Last official report on the Deutschland came about six weeks ago when Berlin announced the Deutschland was to be renamed the Luetzow and the name Deutschland was to be given a larger ship now building. This announcement was followed by rumors in Allied circles that the Deutchland had been damaged and the change in name was a Nazi ruse to cover up.)

The Queen Mary and Mauretania are now "somewhere at sea," the former leaving here yesterday and the latter the night before.

Popular belief is that either or both will transport Australian troops to the Near East where the Allies are congregating a vast military force.

Soviet-Finnish Treaty in Force

HELSINKI, March 22 (AP)—President Kyosti Kallio decreed today that the new Soviet Russian-Finnish peace treaty was in force following an exchange of ratification documents in Moscow.

He announced, in addition, that he had appointed four Finnish representatives to serve on a joint commission to work out details of Finland's new frontiers, narrowed by the March 12 pact with Moscow.

Nazis Shsot Down British Plane; 2 Die

AMSTERDAM, March 22 (INS)—Two German fighter planes today shot down a British fighter plane in an aerial battle over Germany, near the Dutch frontier.

The British plane fell in flames on Dutch territory. Both occupants were killed.

QUAKE RECORDED

NEW YORK, March 22 (AP)—Fr. Joseph J. Lynch said today the Fordham University seismograph recorded a "sharp" quake yesterday which he estimated to be about 10,300 miles distant from New York and in the direction of Australia.

Good Friday Plea Against Evil Truce

LONDON, March 22 (AP)—The London Times, in a Good Friday editorial, declared today that Christ died on the cross rather than "make a truce with evil," and concluded:

"On this Good Friday the inescapable lessons of that example remain."

Swede Gold Cargo Here On Hub Ship

Carrying a great cargo of Norwegian and Swedish products plus $1,000,000 in gold to be used for purchase of metals in the United States by the government of Sweden, the Ivar McCormack freighter Mormac docked at Pier 43, Charlestown, today.

The arrival of the freighter from Norwegian ports marks completion of a two-month transatlantic round trip for the Emacstar, under guidance of Capt. Samuel E. Johnson of Quincy, one of the youngest in the American Merchant Marine service.

Capt. Johnson stated that three days after leaving the port of Narvik, a British cruiser questioned him by means of blinker signal, regarding his cargo and destination.

The cruiser towed the American freighter for several hours.

One passenger was Svend V. Breinholm, of Copenhagen. Breinholm is director of a Danish travel bureau and is on a visit to the United States studying American methods of travel.

The visitor says that because of lack of fuel war hotels in Denmark and Norway have been forced to close and that here is very little travelling now being done in that section of Europe.

Trappist Monks Close Maundy Thursday Services With 'Great Mandatum'

CUMBERLAND, R. I., March 22—Within the cloistered walls of the Trappist monastery of Our Lady of the Valley, the prior and two of the eldest monks closed Maundy Thursday with "the great mandatum"—the washing of the feet of members of the community.

The ceremony was symbolic of Christ's humility and charity in preparation for the last supper. Guided by the Very Rev. Fr. John M. O'Connor, the Trappist priests observed with deep penitence the ceremony they have held for centuries.

Langones Trap Prowler In Woburn

[illegible] to put a stop to it."

LOUIS, SR.—"So we waited nea the cash register, all hiding in that doorway, Frank with his pointed stick and Joe with the tenderizer . . . then we heard him coming! . . . "

The boys stopped talking to hear their father tell the story.

LOUIS, SR. (continuing)—"It was just like we expected . . . the glass breaking . . . his steps, coming toward us. We all held our breaths, he was so close . . . but it was pitch dark.

"And when he got in front of the register we let him have it!"

The boys were so excited they all burst out at once.

CHORUS: "Frankie tackled him!" . . . "He though' a truck had rammed him" . . . "We must weigh 700 pounds all together" . . . "He was yelling for help."

They brandished their assorted weapons as they spoke.

FRANK: "Dad and I held him while Louis called the cops."

Woburn officers who responded in a cruiser found the Langones sitting triumphantly on their "prey," a youth identified by police as James Bigger, 17, of Church st., Woburn.

He was booked on a charge of breaking and entering and was held for arraignment in district court.

Ex-Constable Faces Charge

Charged with impersonating a constable, Morris Titlebaum, 28, of Morton st., Mattapan, was arrested today by headquarters detectives.

Titlebaum, it is alleged, is a former constable in the office of the Boston street commissioner. It is alleged he obtained money by permitting erection of signs while posing as a constable.

According to police, Titlebaum admitted that he realized about $300 cash by his alleged impersonation. Police claim they found a constable's badge on Titlebaum with the initials M T engraved on it. A third initial had been obliterated.

Titlebaum is scheduled to appear in court tomorrow morning.

STATE TAX RULING UP TO COURT

The Massachusetts Supreme Court will debate, probably in May, whether the act of the 1939 Legislature putting a tax on cigarettes and setting income, excise and other franchise tax rates, was constitutional.

This was determined today when Supreme Court Justice James J. Ronan reported to the full court that he had made no decision in the matter referred to him, and that a ruling was up to the full bench.

Judge Ronan was replying to a petition submitted by William H. Evans and others seeking to prevent Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook from submitting a referendum on the taxes to the voters next November.

The petition said the law was "not properly completed and not subject to referendum."

The tax occasioned much debate all through the first half of last year. At one time Atty.-Gen. Paul A. Dever ruled that in his opinion it was "proper."

NEW YORK, March 22—The 36 blended voices of the Massachusetts State Women's Glee Club will be heard on May 17 at the World's Fair of 1940, announced Capt. Gene LaPorte director of the Fair music department today. The '40 fair will open May 11.

The Massachusetts unit features a girls' trio and six special singers, according to Miss Barbara Critchett, manager. The group will headline an Alumnae Day program

'Mail Order Wife' Often Tipsy, He Says

SALEM, March 22—An elderly widower whose wife was a "mail-order bride," and a man and woman who charged their respective mates with a single act of wrongdoing, sought divorces in probate court today.

John Mauritz Tuomi of Central st., Manchester, told Judge John V. Costello he found his wife, Mary, through an advertisement in a newspaper.

"I got 52 replies," he said, "but I liked Mary's best."

So he went to Rockport in July, 1929, to meet her.

First, however, he said, she became his housekeeper. He was a widower, and she a widow with three children. In February, 1930, they married.

"SHE GOT DRUNK"

Tuomi said she was drunk then for two, three or four weeks. Once, he said, she was drunk for eight weeks straight.

"I took bottles away from her," he said, "but she was a masseuse and made money on the side and bought her own liquor."

The suit, which is being contested, is still on trial.

Philip Bernier, about 40, of Peabody, told Judge Costello that in August, 1939 16 years after he had married Hattie D. Bernier, he went with police to a house in Danvers, where they broke the door in.

CAUGHT IN ACT

"My wife was with a man named Oliver Meuse," Bernier said. "He was in his underclothes my wife had nothing on at all."

The following day, h. said, Meuse and his wife pleaded guilty in Danvers District Court to morals charges.

Mrs. Dorothy Lillian Meuse, 31, of Beverly based her suit for divorce from Oliver, on the same charge. She said she was married Jan. 27, 1935, and she sought custody of a four-year-old daughter, Dorothy.

The case was heard in a joint session, unusual action in a divorce court. Then Judge Costello took it under advisement.

Couple Wed a Month Die in Cottage Blaze

LINCOLN, Mich., March 22 (INS)—Clayton Gibbs, 22, and his bride of a month, Mable, 22, were burned to death in their log cabin home five miles north of Lincoln today. Coroner A. L. Spencer, who recovered the bodies from the charred ruins of the cabin, said the fire probably started from an overheated chimney.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pints of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name.

Brussels Sprouts

Virginia O'Connor

And Sprints, And Figger

Perhaps it's the spring, perhaps it's the sprints by a lean-limbed young lady along the Charles, or perhaps it's the sprouts, brussels.

Anyway it's mostly lovely Virginia O'Connor, of Brookline.

She's the up-and-coming model who boldly but demurely takes a romp along the shores of the Charles every morn within the shadow of Harvard halls, who says youth and beauty go hand in hand with the season, the romp and brussels sprouts.

An early call on Miss O'Connor finds her preparing for the daily "model duty" in downtown Boston by downing a cup of warm brussels sprouts, flicked with butter.

Add a dash of orange juice and a few spoons of "energy mush" which can be officially identified as a mixture of cornflakes, bran and chopped banana.

DON'T leave, girls, please read on!

This gastronomic giant converts Miss O'Connor into a svelte dynamo, or something. Ten minutes later she's down on the Charles turning sprouts and "energy mush" into a sprint—which later produces spring and svelte.

Miss O'Connor, will you kindly take the handle?

"Very simple and fundamental," she says blandly, later swathed in a palpitation-type spring ensemble. "Spring is an urge which must be converted into energy in order to keep your figure.

"Additional food energy gives you more energy to sprint and further mold the figure, see?"

Yeah . . .

Anyway, it's sprint and sprouts. And spring.

TWENTY centuries ago, on the first Good Friday, men and women who loved Christ and believed in Him, bowed their heads in profoundest sorrow.

The Saviour of Mankind had been crucified on Golgotha's heights—cruelly and without cause

There was no thought of vengeance then, no hatred, no bitterness, no program of retaliation.

In the agony of death, the Redeemer had spoken, had turned His eyes to the Father in Heaven, had said:

"Forgive! Forgive! They know not what they do!"

Those who had known Christ, who had been privileged to hear His sermons, who had witnessed His miracles and who acknowledged His divinity humbly tried to pattern their own lives after His.

If the Son of God could pardon His enemies they, too, could pardon them.

Picture by Domenico Mastroianni

"When Jesus therefore had received the vinegar, He said, it is finished; and He bowed His head, and gave up the ghost."—St. John 19:30.

Peter and the other Disciples did not take up arms and march against Pilate, the Roman soldiers or the truckling mob that denounced Jesus and defamed His name.

Nor did Mary angrily censure the executioners who nailed her Son to rough planks or cry out in vindictive reproof.

They saw the will of God become manifest, AND THEY ACCEPTED IT.

Would that we of today possessed their strength of mind and greatness of soul. Would that we were also able to turn from those that do us harm, to look to the Father in Heaven and say, "FORGIVE, FORGIVE!"

If only half of the world's people were that kind of men and women, troubles, personal, national and international, would end in a day.

Certainly in a civilization so founded on the real principles of Christianity there could never be such evils as Communism, Fascism, hate-government or malicious persecutions.

There would be only peace and everlasting happiness.

That is the lesson of Good Friday—a lesson this pagan, muddling, warring earth needs now more than ever before.

For until we learn it and practice it, individually and collectively, we must expect to see men and nations befouled by fanatics, tyrants, lunatics and assassins and all that the Sacrifice of Calvary sought to remove from the world.

BOSTON SCHOOLS will use their resources and influence to combat crime among youth. Such is the promise of the School Committee.

Under consideration is a plan suggested by Judge John F. Perkins of the Boston Juvenile Court for the inauguration of special recreational classes similar to the one he is sponsoring for boys on probation. Other suggestions include special classes for various schools, more rapid advancement groups and pre-primary grade instruction in designated districts.

Of course this is only a BEGINNING. But it is PROGRESS.

Making Friends

COME on, let's get acquainted, and let's make friends, I say . . Nobody's going to hurt you, so you needn't fly away . . . If we could understand each other better, I am sure . . you'd not regard my offerings as just an empty lure . . I'm going half way, can't you see, and trying to be friends . . and that's as far as I can go—the rest on you depends . . . All true and lasting friendships a two-way pact provide . . No friendship can endure for long if only on one side.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt -:- -:- MY DAY

NEW YORK CITY, March 22—The hunting accident, which happened to my daughter-in-law, Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt, Jr., upset us all considerably. We must be grateful that she was not killed.

I suppose one cannot blame the horse, for the ground is still somewhat slippery.

To be laid up for some months is going to be very hard for Ethel. I hate to think of the pain and discomfort which she must go through

I suppose it is a great deal to ask, but I wish that all young married people with children would give up hunting. I know how much fun it must be for them and that they never expect any accident to happen, but to an old and timid person like myself to take risks seems unnecessary.

I SUPPOSE weeks in bed give us an opportunity for inner growth which nothing else might achieve and so, perhaps, this is one of the ways in which the Lord educates His children.

When I was a child, we had an old nurse who used to say whenever anything particularly unfortunate happened to us: "Whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth."

Perhaps it is comforting to feel that whatever happens to us is probably intended to give us a chance for spiritual development.

I flew to New York City this morning on a very early plane, and the dentist and I have a rendezvous at noon! Easter is drawing near, so I must do some Easter shopping. Among other things, an article in the New York Herald-Tribune warns us against buying our children and grandchildren live chicks and bunnies for Easter, and suggests that the toy ones give just as much pleasure.

I QUITE agree and can well understand why the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is fostering a campaign against this habit of giving children poor, little defenseless animals at Easter.

I never thought it was healthy for either the animals or the children, so I hope this campaign will be very successful. There is just one place where baby chicks and rabbits are permissible and that is on the farm.

Freedom from entertaining these days is really most refreshing. I spent the whole of yesterday doing extremely feminine things, such as having my hair done and going to tea with a friend.

MEN ADMIT they are wrong more freely than women. This is especially true in case of husband and wife . . . Married women head the list in number of suicides. Unmarried women are second. Married men are third. Divorcees, research reveals, commit suicide the least. Experts do not know why this latter is true but are investigating it . . . In France there is a statue erected in honor of the modiste who first thought of putting women's dresses on over their heads. Maybe we should start a campaign for a monument in New York City in honor of the man who invented the zipper.

VERY few remarks made by men burn deeper into feminine souls than the crack: "Now, isn't that just like a woman" . . . "I have known girls named Ola, Babetta, Delpha, Ava, Iva and Zippa," writes a customer. "And I ask you why shouldn't there be a law against parents giving such names to children not able to protect themselves" . . . "While it is true single men outnumber single women," says an unmarried female, "the fact remains there is only about one eligible male for every three nice girls in the United States." Maybe the lady is right. But what, I wonder, is the minimum in male eligibility demanded by a "nice" girl? Anyway let us all sing "a good man is hard to find."

MANY CLIENTS claim the "if a man makes a better mouse trap" quotation appears in the works of Ralph Waldo Emerson. It does not. I advise aforementioned clients to make no wagers regarding thir . . . Thought provoking observation is that made by a German flier to W. B. Courtney: "The airplane has taken the war out of the hands of the generals and put it in the hands of the politicians." . . . Just saw a dog show prize winner that is a ringer for my pup. That's not surprising. My dog's grandfather is a champion in his class and has won a number of "best dog in the show" cups. However, I am not going to put my dog in any shows. I don't think he would win anything, anyhow. He's too much of a clown.

IS YOUR sweetheart's mother a stout, stylish or otherwise. Then give heed to Seymour Hicks who said: "Look at the lady of your thoughts and if she has a mother with pronounced avoirdupois be sure she will outweigh her mother at that age" . . . Had pie a la mode for dinner tonight. I insisted on it. Pie a la mode is a Boston idea . . . Some of the cleverest writers I know dictate their stuff. And most of them walk up and down while dictating . . . "Mussolini teaches himself. Hitler incessantly preaches to others." So states Emil Ludwig, who has made quite a study of the characters of both dictators.

IN COMPARISON to the American woman," says Englishman C. V. R. Thompson, "the Englishwoman looks appallingly shabby, has big legs and big feet and is wearing the very thing she shouldn't and is wearing it sloppily" . . . Ask your congressman to get you the answer to these questions: Will the number of persons unemployed in the United States as revealed by the 1940 census be released before election day, 1940? How many husbands and wives are both employed by the Federal Government in Washington, D. C.?

TALLULAH REBUFFS COMPLIMENT

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, March 22—Ferenc Molnar saw a rehearsal of his "Liliom" Tuesday, and then went to Sardi's where he was introduced to William Saroyan . . They discussed the teacher, and then Molnar graciously told Saroyan: "You are the greatest American playwright today" . . . Saroyan placed his tongue in his cheek, and answered: "Oh, no, I'm not. Don't forget, there's Shakespeare and Ibsen." . . . Saroyan then turned to Tallulah Bankhead, and sighed: "You're the most interesting woman in this country" . . . Miss Bankhead snickered, and told him to go about his genius-business . . . "But Tallulah," a listener cautioned her, "he was paying you a very nice compliment" . . . "I don't want geniuses to pay me compliments," she stated. "It goes to their heads"

Arrests in the Brooklyn Murder Syndicate cases were announced too soon. That's why detectives are out now scouring the town for witnesses who will supply the corroboration required by law . . . A FILM-AGENT brought a new novel to Eddie Small, the producer, who asked him to relate the plot. The agent did, in great detail. Small told him to leave the book, and promised to read it . . . Two weeks later, he learned that other studios were negotiating for it, and so he bought the movie-rights. He instructed a writer to make a screen-treatment, and she completed that job in six weeks.

* * *

THE WRITER then read it to Small, who complained that she had omitted the best scenes—and told her some of the scenes which the agent had related . . But there were no such scenes in the book. Small then phoned the agent—who confessed that he, too, never had read the book . . . But Small produced that movie, "My Son, My Son"—one of the best films of the year.

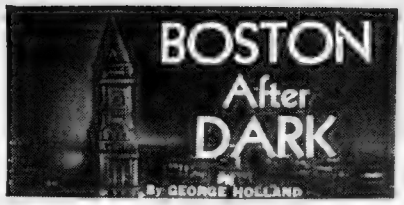
WHEN Tony Martin learned that Alice Faye was preparing to divorce him, he phoned George Jessel, who has had recent experiences in such matters . . . "Well, that's too bad," Jessel consoled. "But how do you feel, Tony?" . . . "It's strange," Martin confessed, "but I don't feel anything" . . . "You don't, eh?" challenged the veteran Jessel. "Well, just try shaking your head once."



FROM THE AIRPORT to a lawyer's office, to the court house, to Chinatown and back to the airport went Kay Kyser . . . Although he was without benefit of smoked glasses, the famous musician's identity was undetected . . . Kay was in town in connection with a suit directed at a recent motion picture in which he was featured . . . The Chinatown visit was in quest of luncheon at Ruby Foo's Den, but Kay was disappointed . . . The Den's business hours are four to four o'clock . . . Another famous young leader, Al Donahue, the Dorchester boy, arrives in town today.

AL AND HIS band open at the Marionette Room of the Hotel Brunswick tomorow night. Paula Kelly will appear with the Donahues in her usual capacity as vocalist . . . But another girl-singer is doing stand-by duty with the band . . . In the proximate future, Paula expects to be listening to the vocalizing of a little stranger reported to be coming to her house . . . Miss Kelly's husband is "in the profession"—a musician.

JOAN EDWARDS, who sings with Paul Whiteman's crew, was a performer at the Cocoanut Grove this morning—an added, and unexpected attraction to the party tossed by Mickey Alpert and Mr. Don't-Mention-My-Name (Mickey's boss), in honor of Lee Dixon . . . Miss Edwards came to town at the invitation of Dick Rodgers, composer of "Higher and Higher" . . . They say that Dick regards the pretty Joan as a distinct possibility as an interpreter of Rodgers and Hart songs in some future musical comedy . . . And this seems an appropriate space to fill with the details of an amusing bit of by-play which had the cognoscenti of the show-world quartered here currently laughing from the diaphram today . . . Lee Dixon is the hero.

MUCH OF OUR READING POPULATION has been informed in this place and that of the presence in town of Mr. Dixon, who primarily is a hoofer, naturally an actor and natively—being Irish—a wit . . Mr. Dixon is an important feature of "Higher and Higher," and among his fellow-actors is a trained seal, a low comic of a seal whose anatomical gestures bespeak a burlesque background . . . It's a clever seal, but the truth of it is that the non-barking members of the cast of "Higher and Higher" are a bit resentful of this seal.

THE SEAL HAS HAD MORE PUBLICITY than Jack Haley, Marta Eggert, Shirley Ross and yes—Lee Dixon—put together . . . Even the non-reading members of our population, those who study out the comic strips and pictures, know that "Sharkey," the seal, is in town . . . And that is because the seal was abducted by Harvards and landed in a Gold Coast bawth-tub which was not being used last Saturday night.

THE STORY WAS SLIGHTLY FISHY and until a flipper press-agent than Tom Weatherly comes along—his stunt with "Sharkey," the seal, will have to do . . . However . . . The seal made the front-pages . . .

LIGHT COMEDY ROLE FOR CAGNEY

By Louella O. Parsons

Jimmy Cagney

HOLLYWOOD, March 22—Warners and Paramount have been doing some story swapping with the result that Jimmy Cagney will star in "One Sunday Afternoon." Several years ago Gary Cooper made this for Para and if you ask me it will seem strange to see badboy Cagney in the light, sentimental comedy about a Bumpkin dentist. Jimmy, however, needs a change of pace. He's a good actor but there's no reason why he should be forever limited to smart Aleck gangsters. This former Broadway stage hit is a welcome change.

In exchange for "One Sunday Afternoon" Warners have handed Para "Shepherd of the Hills," by Harold Bell Wright. So far the "Shepherd" hasn't been cast, but Robert Preston will be the hero. There's one boy who seems to veer from heavies to heroes with the greatest of ease, and while I can't see him as Paramount's Clark Gable (as advertised) he's an interesting young actor. Henry Hathaway directs the Wright yarn and it will mark Stuart Walker's debut as a producer.

SHIRLEY TEMPLE

* * *

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Shirley Temple is down with flu; the Jock Whitneys at Ciro's in different parties indicate that the story of their separation is true. Jock danced with pretty Frances Robinson, Letitia Fairbanks, and all the other Hollywood beauties at his table, including Marlene Dietrich, who was with Tim Durant. Olivia De Havilland, once Durant's favorite dance partner, was escorted by Jimmie Stewart, who you may remember paid court, not so long ago, to Marlene.

* * *

NO MOTHER-IN-LAW trouble in the Brian Aherne household. He sat next to Mrs. Fontaine and danced with her several times. Olivia, Jimmie, Lee and Herbert Marshall were in the Aherne party; Marjorie King and her millionaire bridegroom, Phil Plant, in the Myron Selznick party. Plant was formerly wed to Constance Bennett. Myron had practically all his clients at one big table—Loretta Young, Edna Best, Joan Bennett, Margaret Sullavan, Josephine Hutchinson, George Raft with Norma Shearer, of course, and Alfred Hitchcock.

* * *

KAY FRANCIS, escorted by Louis Bromfield, was with Miriam Hopkins and the Milton Brens. Sitting not far away was Anatole Litvak with a girl no one seemed to know. Elaine Shepard, so-o pretty, was again with Greg Bautzer in the Jules Stein party including Peggy Fears and A. B. Blumenthal; Mexico is going to see Mickey Rooney as soon as he finishes "Andy Hardy Meets a Debutante."

TWO-MINUTE STORY

HELEN tucked a stray curl under her Easter bonnet and looked approvingly at the reflection. Well, he ought to like it.

For the past two weeks Helen had been dashing from one millinery shop to another, catching a frankfort for lunch and finally plowing her way back to the office in a vain attempt to make it before the boss. Patience was rewarded, however, for at last she found the "one and only" hat, a masterpiece of decorative gardening, mingled with unbelievable clouds of veiling. Yes, she thought happily, it is rather intriguing. I bet he'll like it.

"HURRY, Helen, we'll be late, and mother asked me to bring you over early. We mustn't be late. It'll make a bad impression."

He no sooner had the words out than Helen came bouncing down the stairs, bubbling over with enthusiasm which was, however, short-lived, for Dick being very much in love and filled to the brim with his own happiness at being with Helen failed to notice the new hat.

Conversation, therefore, fell short and before either realized it they had reached their destination. Dick's masculine intuition sensed that something was wrong, but, manlike, he tossed it aside hoping it would take care of itself. Girls are like that he mused as he proceeded to help her out of the car.

"Mother," Dick called. "Come see what I've found."

MRS. NORTON arrived in due course and embraced her future daughter-in-law fondly. Dick was very much in love with the girl and she decided she would not be the cause of any friction.

"Dear, I'm so—" then, "Sakes alive!"

She stared at Helen a moment then hurried her rather oversized figure into her room and appeared in a second proudly displaying on her somewhat matronly head a—

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

"GOOD FRIDAY" is a tragic tradition to you if you are a Christian. But have you ever stopped to think what that incident really meant, really means in terms of human emotion?

Have you ever dared to think that you, in your spite and intolerance, may have mingled with that blood-mad mob that stormed Golgotha?

Have you ever faced the ghastly fact that Good Friday did not cease 2000 years ago, but that its horror screams today and that your own snarl may mingle with its clamor?

THEY SNARLED that night before they crucified the Christ. They stank with their hate. They snarl today and the whole world reeks.

And the snarl is the same. And the hate is the same. And the crucifixion is the same. And the shame on our supposedly civilized souls is as thick and as black and as rotten.

I am of those who presume to call themselves "Christians." How dare we do it!

I am no preacher. I too have joined in the blood-mad mob, to hunt some hurt thing down. I too have betrayed the Truth with a smiling kiss. And yet, in the awful pause of this week, a brief light comes. And by its radiance I know this to be true—

All hate is evil. All vengeance and greed are vile. There are no noble crucifixions. Brutality is brutality whether its victim be Jew or Gentile . . . Born in Bethlehem or Berlin, Moscow or London.

THERE IS NO difference in the shedding of blood . . . or the selling of the Holy Ghost. And whether you kill in the name of England or Germany, France or Russia, America or Japan—or simply knife your neighbor with a vicious tongue—you are still part of the bloody mob that snarled at the foot of the cross.

THERE IS ONLY ONE CROSS—THE CROSS OF MAN'S BRUTALITY. AND EVERY TORTURED MAN THAT HANGS UPON IT, WHETHER HE BE GENTILE, JEW OR PAGAN, IS A PART OF THE CRUCIFIED CHRIST. AND YOU—IF YOU SELL HIM OUT—AND NAIL HIM THERE—ARE JUDAS ISCARIOT. AND A MURDERER.

Legion Drives to Bar Russell in Schools

Special to Boston Evening American

NEW YORK, March 22—The case of Bertrand Russell, British advocate of illicit marital relations and supporter of Communist theories, confirmed as an instructor at the College of the City of New York despite nation-wide protest, today presented these disclosures:

1—That school buildings are used under authority of the New York City Board of Education for the holding of Communist meetings.

2—That text books are used in some schools of the State which teach grade school pupils the American system of government must be supplanted.

LEGION PLANS DRIVE

Evidence of such subversive influences in the tax-sustained free educational system were cited as compelling justification for a state-wide investigation by a joint legislative committee of Senate and Assembly.

Full power to subpoena witnesses and take testimony under oath will be urged.

Representatives of the American Legion in New York were in action today on these disclosures and recommendations.

The legislative investigation, as envisioned in the recommendations, would include a report of findings to the Legislature not later than Dec. 31, and enactment of "such legislation as the facts evolved indicate necessary."

The legionnaires, under chairmanship of James E. McCabe, head of state Americanism committee, worked out their program at a four-hour meeting in the Hall of Records.

RUSSELL A "CLIMAX"

Concerning the British teacher and his advocacy of "free love," Chairman McCabe said:

"Bertrand Russell is just the climax to a long series of incidents and events which makes this action by the Legion necessary. We have seen the Communist-dominated American Student Union given permission to run unmolested under faculty permit.

"We have seen the Karl Marx Society operating with faculty permission and using as a textbook a history of Russian Communism specifically approved by the central committee of the International Communist party.

"The proposal to make Bertrand Russell and his 'barnyard morality' teachings a part of our school system is just a climax to it all.

"We want a full legislative investigation of the whole unholy mess, a fixing of responsibility for conditions as we have found them, and then a thorough cleaning of these augean stables of subversion."

BOSTON RECORD-AMERICAN REBUS GAME

$10,000 Cash Could Buy You Lots of Happiness!

TOMORROW, another week comes to a close in this big $15,000.00 Rebus Game being conducted by the Boston Record-American. Ten Thousand Dollars! That is a lot of money, isn't it? What joys and pleasures would sweep into your life with that sizable sum safely tucked away in your bank-book! Resolve right now to follow through to your share of the big winnings!

MISS ANY OF THE PREVIOUS PUZZLES? If you missed any of the previous puzzles, you can get them by mailing the coupon in the lower right corner. Even if you're not yet entered in the contest, the road to fortune is still open to you—because you can secure all the previous puzzles, Nos. 1-34. Just enclose with the coupon 2c for each puzzle desired.

PUZZLES DIVIDED INTO WEEKLY SERIES The puzzles are divided into weekly series of six, that is, the six puzzles appearing from Monday through Saturday of each week. This week's series (the Sixth) started with Puzzle No. 31 on Monday and will conclude with Puzzle No. 36 on Saturday. This week's series should be submitted any time before midnight, Saturday, March 30. The next and subsequent series should similarly be submitted within the week following publication in the Record and American. (You can follow the contest in either paper.)

ENCLOSE TEN CENTS WITH EACH SERIES The rules require a remittance of 10c in coin with each weekly series. In return, contestants will receive a set of original, entertaining Rebus Puzzles at the conclusion of the contest.

Neatness will not count—hence, there's no need to decorate or ornament your submissions in any way.

HOW TO SOLVE A REBUS PUZZLE

Each puzzle represents a WORD. You find that word by adding and subtracting the given letters and the letters in the names of the objects pictured. For example:

Suppose you were asked to solve a puzzle like this: HORSE minus ROSE plus OT equals a 3-letter word. You would cross out the letters R, O, S, E from the word HORSE, leaving you H, to which you would add the letters OT, giving you HOT as your solution.

PUZZLE No. 35

Fill in your solution above, one letter to each square, in the solution diagram that follows the equal sign.

MY NAME _____

ADDRESS _____

CITY _____ STATE _____

Your answer to this puzzle, together with your solutions to the five other Rebus Puzzles appearing from Mon., March 18, to Sat., March 23, inclusive, should be brought or mailed to the Rebus Editor, Boston Record-American, P. O. Box 2058, before Midnight, Sat., March 30, together with 10c in coin. In return for remittances, contestants will receive a special set of puzzles at the close of the contest.

INFORMATION CORNER

QUERY: After the contest is over, will I be able to find out the correct solutions to the puzzles?

REPLY: After the contest ends, we shall publish a full list of the correct solutions to all the puzzles of the contest.

• • •

QUERY: Can a solution to any of the puzzles be correct if it contains more letters than there are squares in the solution diagram?

REPLY: No. Each and every answer should fit exactly into the solution diagram, one letter to each blank square. If your answer does not fit exactly, you can be sure it's wrong.

• • •

QUERY: Will I be under any handicap if I enter the contest at its present stage?

REPLY: None whatsoever. You can enter now and bring yourself up to date and to the same point as though you had entered the first day.

• • •

QUERY: If I use the Answer Form provided for an entire week's series, is it necessary to send the puzzles along with the Answer Form?

REPLY: No. You need not send in the puzzles themselves with the weekly Answer Form. However, if you prefer, you can simply send the six daily puzzles, each correctly filled out with the solution and your name and address, as your week's submissions. In that case, you don't have to transfer your solutions to the weekly Answer Form.

THE RULES

1—The Boston Record-American Rebus Game is open to all bona fide residents of the New England States, except employes of the Boston Record, the Boston American and the Sunday Advertiser, members of their families, any person acting as a proxy for another, and any person who has won $500 or more in any newspaper contest.

2—Beginning Monday, February 12th, 1940, a Rebus puzzle will be published each weekday in the Boston Record and the Boston American. Contestants may obtain their puzzles from either publication. The six puzzles published during each week will constitute a series. There will be fifteen weekly series. Answers for each week's series of puzzles should be brought or mailed to the Contest Editor c/o the Boston Record-American Rebus Game. Answers for each week's series should be submitted within the week after that series appears in the Boston Record and the Boston American.

3—One Hundred (100) prizes will be awarded by the Boston Record-American in accordance with the published schedule of prizes, to those 100 contestants who, by their solutions, achieve the 100 highest scores. No contestant may win more than one prize. Neatness does not count. Do not decorate your answers.

4—In case two or more contestants are tied for a certain prize, just what particular prize each contestant may be entitled to will be determined by submitting to each tied contestant a set of tie-breaking puzzles and if necessary a second, third, or fourth set of tie-breaking puzzles. Prizes will be awarded on the basis of the highest scores achieved by contestants, in accordance with the instructions and scoring regulations governing the solution of such tie-breaking puzzles. At the discretion of the Boston Record and the Boston American, tied contestants may be required to work the tie-breaking puzzles without assistance, in the office of the Boston Record or Boston American, in cases of final ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded.

5—In order to qualify for a prize, contestants are required to accompany each weekly series of answers with a remittance of 10c in coin. An individual file will be set up for each qualified contestant and each weekly set of answers duly filed therein. After the contest closes, each individual file will be duly judged.

To those contestants who complete the 15 weekly series of puzzles and who in all other ways conform to the rules of the contest, The Boston Record-American will present a special series of fifteen original Rebus puzzles created by Harold Hart, foremost puzzle expert.

6—Any person, by entering this contest, agrees to abide by and accept as final the decision of the Boston Record and the Boston American on all matters affecting this contest, including among others, the qualification of contestants, their disqualification at any time for any cause deemed necessary, the application of the rules, the judging of answers, the scoring of solutions, and the interpretation of such instructions (governing individual puzzles) as may be announced by the contest officials. By entering this contest participants agree that their answers become the property of the Boston Record and the Boston American and will not be returned.

7—Entries that are not signed by name will not be considered eligible for prizes nor will any claims to the ownership of such entries be recognized. Entries which are illegible will not be considered. The Boston Record and the Boston American will not be responsible for entries or communications lost or unduly delayed either from the contestant to the Boston Record-American Contest Editor or from the Boston Record-American Contest Editor to the contestant.

THE USUAL GREEN ROOM reception at which a favored few can meet and chat with celebrities back stage after a Symphony Hall concert, will be replaced by a buffet supper and reception in the foyer at the gala concert for the benefit of four French war charities Monday evening . . .

The committee has planned the supper so that everyone in the audience, upon the contribution of a dollar to the relief fund, may meet the evening's celebrities—Lily Pons, George Copeland, Dr. Serge Koussevitsky and members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra . . .

Lucy Cochrane, Boston society's Glamour Girl number 1, will head a group of debutante program girls, who will lend considerable color to the evening by dressing in festive Alsatian costumes with be-flowered and be-ribboned lace caps . . . Assisting her will be Christina Lowell, Jean Saltonstall, Justine V. R. Hooper, Mary H. Coolidge, Eleanor Motley, Mary Louise Rice, Mary Wigglesworth, and Lee Thatcher . . .

Most recent subscribers to this affair are Mrs. Reginald Foster, Mrs. Theodore Spencer, Mrs. John W. Hallowell, Mrs. Richard E. Danielson, Mrs. Russell Codman, Mrs. Mark Jouett, Mrs. Francis W. Hatch and many others . . .

Pre-View of Easter Parade

THE AUDIENCE at yesterday's Symphony concert, which was advanced a day because of Good Friday, was just like a pre-view of the Easter Parade . . . The hint of spring in the air provided a wonderful opportunity for the ladies to sport their new bonnets . . .

One of the most fetching costumes was worn by Mrs. S. Huntington Wolcott, Jr., who attended with Mrs. Charles Cunningham . . . Under a short fur jacket she wore a trim navy blue suit brightened with a wide brimmed scarlet felt hat and scarlet purse . . . The brim of the hat was shirred to the crown and a flowing navy mesh veil added an extra note of chic . . . Mrs. Cunningham's black ensemble was topped by a tight fitting calot of black faille with a white ribbon rosette . . .

Mrs. David Cheever's blonde hair showed through the open crown of a navy ribbon hat which had a mass of blue hyacinths on the front . . .

Flower bonnets predominated in the smartly dressed audience which flocked to hear a performance of favorite classics, Beethoven's Fourth Symphony, the Overture to Mozart's Marriage of Figaro, and Symphony No. 3 by Howard Hansen, a modern composer . . .

Dorothy Gannett, who walked over from a Vincent Club rehearsal at the Somerset wore a pink and blue flower toque with her black Persian trimmed coat . . . She was with Mary Wigglesworth whose blonde hair was set off by a gold wool dress and short skunk jacket . . .

A trio of debs attending together included Elaine Hartt, Eleanor Harding and Virginia Hoar . . . Mrs. S. V. R. Crosby gave her neighbor, Mrs. Frederick S. Goodwin, a lift over to the concert, and others attending together were Mrs. Henry K. White, Jr., with Mrs. Harrison Reynolds, Lucy Cochrane with her step-father, Dudley Pickman, Mrs. Charles F. Ayer with Mrs. Albert G. Burrage, Jr., whose black suit was brightened with a pink blouse and pink band on her small black sailor . . .

League Head Attends

A beaver jacket, gray tailored suit and gray sailor draped with a raspberry veil fashioned Mrs. Alfred McIntyre's modish outfit and others present were Anne Ayer with her younger sister, Hilda; Peggy Capper, Mrs. William Dana Orcutt, Mrs. Joe V. Meigs who has just returned from California, Sister Sears, Roberta Robb, Mrs. Frank Allen, Mrs. Arthur Dupee, Jr., in good looking purple and turquoise tweed with matching hat, Mrs. Ethan A. H. Sims and Mrs. Browning Marean . . .

Boston Evening American Photo

MRS. C. TRACY BARNES of Lincoln is one of the group of young marrieds helping out with plans for the concert to benefit four French war charities at Symphony Hall, Monday evening. Lily Pons, George Copeland and Dr. Koussevitsky will be stars of the evening.

Penny Sale For Nursery

On Tuesday evening, April 16, the Empire Room of the Hotel Vendome will be the scene of the Penny Sale held by The Guild of St. Elizabeth for their day nursery. Mrs. John C. O'Neil, president, will be assisted by the following committee: Mrs. Francis T. Jantzen, Miss Dorothy Carney, Miss Virginia Prout, Mrs. Frederic Crosby, Mrs. Charles A. Donovan, Mrs. William W. Drummey, Miss Alice Falvey, Mrs. Matthew J. Fox, Mrs. David Foley, Mrs. Francis Pitts, Miss Agnes Regan, Mrs. C. Raymond Hanlon, Miss Helen Clarke, Mrs. Michael F. Foley, Mrs. Emile Coulon, Miss Louise Fitzgerald, Mrs. William J. Walton.

Antiques Draw Many

Friends of Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, Jr., will undoubtedly be served a delicious repast from the dainty French chocolate set she purchased yesterday from Miss Margaret Curtis' booth and Mrs Paul J. Sachs added to her collection by purchasing an old pewter platter.

Mrs. Samuel Cabot attended yesterday and bought some colorful rugs.

Tea Will Honor Artist

Mrs. Robert T. S. Lowell is in charge of a reception and tea to be held at the Women's Republican Club tomorrow in honor of Samuel Chamberlain, New England artist and etcher of note who will speak on "Prints and Print Making," and whose prints are on exhibit at the club through March 30.

Mrs. Chamberlain, the artist's wife, will pour together with Mrs. C. Nichols Greene, Mrs. Charles P. Howard, Mrs. Charles B. Gulick and Mrs. Lowell

Love and Marriage

Boy Should Pay His Way

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My second marriage is to a man who is divorced from his first wife. They had three children, two of whom live with their mother, and the oldest—a boy of 19—lives with us, and he works with his father. I had four children by my first husband, and supported them alone for over ten years.

This son of my husband makes $4 a day. My oldest son is in a CCC camp and has his check sent to me. My youngest boy earns enough money out of school to clothe himself. I've been charging my step-son $7 a week board, which my husband objects to, as he thinks he owes his children a living as long as he lives—in other words, that a parent never can repay a child for being here. I feel differently.

My husband contributes toward the maintenance of his two daughters, and my little girls of 14 and 12 live with us. I also work four days a week, using the money for expenses in the home.

Now do you think I'm right in charging the boy a small amount for board, or is my husband right in feeling that he owes a living to his children? We have agreed to abide by your decision.

A DEPRESSED MOTHER.

For the boy's sake, it seems to me he should pay board. He's earning $4.00 a day, splendid wages for a youngster of 19.

It seems to me that you carry your half of the burden very capably, and your stepson should begin to realize it's time he did his share toward maintaining the household.

GIRL FRIEND FLIRTS WITH EVERYONE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My girl friend is a senior in high school. I work nights, and the only time I can see her is on Sunday. When we go out, she flirts with everyone. She maker dates with other boys, but never keeps them. Is she just trying to make me jealous? I'm 21 and she's 17.

My mother says I should not go out with her until I get a job which pays more money. My girl friend won't go out if she knows I'm broke, and then she entertains me at her home. Shall I keep on going with her, or give her up as my mother says? BUMPY.

A high school girl who flirts with everyone she sees sounds distinctly common to me, and I think would be a poor risk either as a steady or something more serious, if you should have that in view. Any young man is entitled to an agreeable Sunday with a girl friend, especially a man who works nights.

But unless this young lady mends her ways and stops flirting with everyone, it might be well to change partners.

Name on Check

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My name (let's say) is Mrs. William Fay. My first name is Caroline. I have just opened a checking account, for paying my household bills. I sign these checks Caroline Fay. Is this form of signature right or wrong? Shall I change it or use this form? C. C.

When you signed your application for the checking account, this form was apparently the one you preferred to use. And it is a correct form, although not the usual form. Most women prefer to retain their maiden name as part of their informal name . . . Caroline Smith Fay. But Caroline Fay is correct, and so is Carol S. Fay.

Decorate Easter Eggs

By MARTHA LEE

CENTURIES AGO when pagan tribes celebrated the coming of spring, cakes and sweetmeats were offered up to the gods to bring good luck. During the Crusades, nobles offered special Easter cakes to prove loyalty to their king.

Nowadays a gala cake still holds an important place in the Easter festivities. Outline your greetings with tiny candies or a piping of frosting and give your cake double stardom as a centerpiece and a crowning delicacy for the menu.

Bunnies, those traditional symbols of good luck, make an appropriate guard of honor; but you won't need to rely on their good luck blessing if you use these failure proof frosting recipes, made with sweetened condensed milk. You are sure of a creamy smooth triumph that will do full honor to the bright new season.

STRAWBERRY FROSTING

2½ cups confectioners' (4X) sugar
¼ cup sweetened condensed milk
¼ cup fresh strawberry pulp
1 tbsp. lemon juice

Blend sifted confectioners' sugar into sweetened condensed milk. Force enough strawberries through sieve to make ¼ cup pulp, add with lemon juice to first mixture. Beat until smooth and creamy. Cool cake before spreading frosting. Makes enough frosting to cover 2 (9-inch) layers or top and sides of loaf cake or about 24 cup cakes.

MAGIC ORANGE FROSTING

½ cup sweetened condensed milk
2 tbsp. orange juice
2 tbsp. grated orange rind
3½ cups confectioners' sugar (4X)

Blend sweetened condensed milk, orange juice and grated orange rind. Add sifted confectioners' sugar gradually. Blend thoroughly. Spread on cold cake. Makes enough frosting to cover tops of 2 (9-inch) layers or top and sides of loaf cake or about 24 cup cakes.

HERE'S a "Happy Easter" cake with a rabbit guard of honor, but you won't need to rely on their good luck blessing if you use these failure proof frostings made with sweetened condensed milk.

QUICK CHOLOCATE FROSTING

2 squares chocolate
1 1-3 cups (1 can) sweetened condensed milk
1 tbsp. water
2-3 tsp. almond extract
Blanched almonds

Cook chocolate and milk in double boiler 5 minutes, or until chocolate is melted and mixture thickens, stirring until blended; add water and flavoring and cool. Spread on cake and decorate with almond halves or sprinkle with ½ cup finely chopped almonds. Makes enough frosting for top and sides of 8-inch square cake, or 1 dozen cup cakes.

CHERRY CARAMEL FROSTING

1 can sweetened condensed milk (caramelized)
4 tbsp. butter
1½ cups finely powdered confectioners' sugar
1 cup candied cherries
¼ cup nut meats
1 tsp. almond extract

Blend together caramelized milk and butter until smooth and creamy. Add confectioners' sugar, sifted, cherries and nuts, finely chopped, and almond extract. Beat until well blended. Spread on cake.

BUTTER FROSTING

2 tbsp. butter
½ cup sweetened condensed milk
1½ cups finely powdered confectioners' sugar
½ tsp. vanilla

Cream butter and milk thoroughly. Add gradually the sifted confectioners' sugar and beat until the frosting is smooth, creamy and light in color. Other flavors than vanilla may be used. This frosting may be tinted any color by the addition of a speck of food coloring. Pale tints are most attractive.

Birthday Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE
Friday, March 22

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY—Mentally alert during all wakeful hours; a brain worker. You are sympathetic to those in need; have artistic ability. Excellent qualities are yours for leadership positions and fields. Correct (if you haven't done so already) a tendency to suffer inwardly at slights. Your tasks in life are commensurate with your fine capability, that is why you so often find yourself heading a really difficult job. Blessings!

LUCKY NUMBER—Today's lucky number is 73.

LUCKY COLOR—Today's lucky color is Alice blue.

Send 15 cents and large self-addressed stamped envelope to Frances Drake, Boston American, Box 2228, Boston, for an individual horoscope, personal guide, and lucky calendar for first six months of 1940, giving the day and month you were born.

Harvard Cast Will Be Feted

The crowd of Easter visitors is one of the gayest in many years at Hot Springs, where festive plans are being made for the presentation of "Assorted Nuts" by Harvards Hasty Pudding Club a week from Tuesday.

Entertaining before and after the show will include a mammoth cocktail party for members of the cast at Harvard alumni given by Fay Ingalls, Harvard '04, and John J. Hicks Kerr of the class of '25.

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. R. Barker of Plymouth are among the recent New England arrivals at the Homestead.

You Can Be Beautiful

Your Spring Complexion

By ARLINE GOULD

IF YOU haven't been aware before this of the supreme flattery a colored veil can bestow on any complexion, young or not so young, you're indeed deep in a spring daze. Snap out of it, and make the most of what the gods offer you.

The trick is to make up to the color of the veil, so its full complement of becomingness is yours.

Three absolutely new powder shades have just stepped into the glare of beauty editors' publicity all over the country.

Three shades, each one intended to be worn with a transparent, gauzy film of veil for your complete beautification. One is Goya yellow, to go with any shade of yellow veil.

Renoir pink is divine with a grey veil, or any of the rosy colors. It gives your skin a—wouldn't a director's picture. Throughout there is his master touch indelibly identifying this as a Hitchcock screen classic.

Robert E. Sherwood, assisted by Joan Harrison, has provided him with an excellent script. The cast, headed by co-stars Laurence Olivier and Joan Fontaine, is absolutely flawless.

Understatement in direction and dialogue, a virtue synonymous with this Englishman's releases, was never more consistently maintained by the cherubic, over-upholstered movie director than in his current assignment. From the opening sequences, mutely testifying to the eerie beauty of Manderley, to the picture's smashing climax, there is a sustained quality of suspense and mystery. Always there is the unseen presence of the beautiful, fascinating Rebecca dominating the live- of all who live at Manderley.

Olivier, whose Heathcliff in "Wuthering Heights" was one of last year's highspots, gives another matchless performance as the unhappy, harassed Maxim de Winter. Contrasting with his sombre portrayal is the refreshing, young-girl characterization of Joan Fontaine, who succeeds Rebecca as Maxim's second wife.

Notable for its restraint is Judith Anderson's lethal housekeeper, the sadistic Mrs. Danvers whose unswerving loyalty to the deceased Rebecca is exceeded only by her venomous animosity towards her successor.

Hollywood Paragraphs

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, March 22—An autographed photograph of Mrs. F. D. R. and a whack at stardom in "Public Deb No. 1," all in one day, made Brenda Joyce feel that things are indeed looking up for her.

She has never had as much of a build-up as some of the other youngsters on the 20th Century-Fox lot but suddenly the letters started pouring in asking to see her again and that's enough for any studio to get busy. So now she'll be starred in the Elsa Maxwell brainchild, which gets under way next month.

Sidney Lanfield, recuperating from a long illnes, will direct Brenda and it's now up to him to see that Brenda fulfills the expectations and interest she created in "The Rains Came."

• • •

The bright spots won't be seeing George Raft for a spell after next week for he's going to work and when he works not even Norma Shearer could interest him in stepping out. All of which is my way of saying that George takes his word seriously.

He'll check in at Warners studio to be starred in "The Long Haul," based on a novel by A. S. Beezrades which Jerry Wald and Dick MacCauley have prepared for George.

It's an earthy sort of a movie with a "Grapes of Wrath" treme, although I must say I'm tired of hearing every sombre story compared to "Grapes of Wrath." Raoul Walsh will direct George and that reminds me, I wonder what happened to "The Patent Leather Kid" which has been discussed for so many months?

BRENDA JOYCE, star of "The Rains Came," gets the top role in "Public Deb No. 1."

'Pinocchio' Excels 'Snow White'

Screen Treat For All at Keith's

By PEGGY DOYLE

In the case of Walt Disney comparisons are positively obligatory, and so here goes. His second feature-length cartoon, "Pinocchio," is even better than his first, the imperishable, enchanting "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs."

Yep, believe it or sue us, or better still, catch it yourselves at the Keith Memorial, and there's hardly any doubt you'll all be yes-boys and girls.

Is there anybody who doesn't know Collodi's "Pinocchio," the story of the little woodenhead carved by the old woodcarver, Geppetto, and finally loved by him so dearly that the kind Blue Fairy gave him life? She gave him a conscience, Jiminy Cricket, to help him be good, and his reward was to become a real little boy.

OUT FOR ADVENTURE

Pinocchio wanted that more than anything else but he couldn't resist adventure. RKO Boston Mystery Films, Vaudeville Delight Fans

Two gripping first-run pictures, "The House of Seven Gables" and "Black Friday," and a seven-act vaudeville show are packed into the extraordinary Easter holidays' RKO Boston show.

"The House of Seven Gables," directed for Universal by one of the famous veterans from Continental studios, Joe May, is a true-enough version of the classic Nathaniel Hawthorne story, once upon a time required reading in English courses. It has much of the old Salem atmosphere and a generally excellent cast headed by George Sanders, Vincent Price and Margaret Lindsay.

Miss Lindsay gives one of her very best performances as Hepzibah, first a girl of 18, whose sweetheart is torn away from her and wrongfully sent to [illegible] as the result of false personal gossip; [illegible] as the calendar for first six months of 1940, giving the day and month you were born.

once more to give the film fans shivers and shakes, and with Stanley Ridges—the best actor of them all—as the man who, through a weird brain operation, becomes a dual personality, now a genial professor and again a dreaded thug. The whole play is a whirlwind of excitement.

You guessed it about the vaudeville. Borrah Minevitch and his Harmonica Rascals took first prize with their popular medley of melody and comedy. But for laughs alone you could pick the Fred Lightner and Rosella McQueen act, including that uproarous travesty on strip-teasing. Jack Holland and [illegible] June Hart, [illegible]

'REBECCA' HIT ABOUNDS IN ACADEMY AWARD QUALITIES

Top Honors To Director

By PEGGY DOYLE

David "Oscar" Selznick, happily burdened with Academy awards for his screen smash hit, "Gone With the Wind," puts himself in the running for next year's honors with the Alfred Hitchcock-directed production, "Rebecca," on State and Orpheum screens. This film adaptation of Daphne du Maurier's macabre best-seller is yet another notable example of Hollywood's suddenly developed skill for converting a book into screen entertainment.

Hitchcock, British director on his initial American assignment, ranks first on the receiving end when it comes to congratulations for "Rebecca" is indubitably a director's picture. Throughout there is his master touch indelibly identifying this as a Hitchcock screen classic.

Robert E. Sherwood, assisted by Joan Harrison, has provided him with an excellent script. The cast, headed by co-stars Laurence Olivier and Joan Fontaine, is absolutely flawless.

Understatement in direction and dialogue, a virtue synonymous with this Englishman's releases, was never more consistently maintained by the cherubic, over-upholstered movie director than in his current assignment. From the opening sequences, mutely testifying to the eerie beauty of Manderley, to the picture's smashing climax, there is a sustained quality of suspense and mystery. Always there is the unseen presence of the beautiful, fascinating Rebecca dominating the lives of all who live at Manderley.

Olivier, whose Heathcliff in "Wuthering Heights" was one of last year's highspots, gives another matchless performance as the unhappy, harassed Maxim de Winter. Contrasting with his sombre portrayal is the refreshing, young-girl characterization of Joan Fontaine, who succeeds Rebecca as Maxim's second wife.

Notable for its restraint is Judith Anderson's lethal housekeeper, the sadistic Mrs. Danvers whose unswerving loyalty to the deceased Rebecca is exceeded only by her venomous animosity towards her successor.

SHIRLEY ROSS is one of the stars of the new Rodgers-Hart-Hurlbut musical comedy, "Higher and Higher," now at the Shubert, and which will enter its third week Easter Monday.

Crosby-Hope-Lamour Riot

By PEGGY DOYLE

As choice a teaming as ham-and (and there no double entendre intended, my boys) is Paramount studio's latest combination of Bing Crosby and Bob Hope. With Dorothy Lamour, in her customary sarong uniform providing the third angle, these two are cavorting all over the Met screen in "Road to Singapore," much to the customers' merriment. The story? Nothing more than an excuse on which to exploit the boys' shenanigans.

Crosby, a pinocchio who'll never know any better, is the itchy-footed son of a shipping magnate, Charles Coburn. Even as you and I at this tempting turn of the calendar, Crosby yearns for a rendezvous with the South Seas. In company with his equally irresponsible pal, the sailor-suited Hope, who's now using mercurochrome so the enemy won't see the whites of his eyes Bing keeps the island date.

The place is lush with native beauty, saronged and scenic, but the boys have pledged each other to resist the former variety. It's okey-dokey until toujours Lamour puts in an appearance—and a bit for the shack's empty cot.

Slow-motion Crosby and Hair breath Hope immediately go into action in the romeo sweepstakes. The comedy is fast and funny, and should mean further screen teamwork for these lads.

THE GILDED CAGE

A Complete Short Story Daily on This Page

By CHARLES McGUIRK

MASTER OLIVER SPERRY awoke to the slightly oppressive warmth of a foggy Hollywood morning. He was in a bed whose springs were so perfectly adjusted that he could easily get the impression that he was floating in a reclining position through space. His bed sheets were of the finest linen and his pale blue pajamas were of the sheerest silk.

He gazed around his room. It was the habitation of a prince—not a Balkan prince because Balkan kingdoms have not money enough to squander what this room contained in value on a 12-year-old boy—but a prince with as much wealth as the czarvich possessed—when there was a czarvich. There was a dresser and a dressing table of ebony. There were fencing masks and boxing gloves hanging on the wall. A riding crop was flung across the seat of a low-backed luxurious leather chair. Rare sporting tints hung on the walls.

Master Oliver looked upon these absently and with a dutiful feeling that these were part of his fairy story good fortune. But there was not much luster in his eyes. They wandered from the pictures out through the window at the fog. The view, however, was so depressing that he climbed out of bed and walked to the window and looked out.

Below him was spread a ritualistic altar of sun worshippers. In the foreground was a gigantic swimming pool. Beyond it and to the right were four tennis courts. To the left were badminton courts and croquet grounds. In the background, disappearing over the hills was a nine-hole golf course.

There was activity directly below him. Servants were busy clearing the debris of an all-night swimming party. Three cars stood in the driveway. The chauffeur and two assistants were busy readying them up for the day's demands. Gardeners worked all over the place.

Master Oliver's eyes dulled to a boredom out of which he tried to pull himself with the following soliloquy:

Look at that! Swimming pools, golf courses, tennis courts, automobiles. And I can use them and have any part of them. They're mine or as much mine as I want to make them. And why? Because I got a break that not even a dime novel writer could ever imagine.

FATE WAS KIND

Six months ago, I am a boy with no prospects. I am living in Oklahoma in a tent with Ma and Pa and four brothers and six sisters. The whole thirteen of us are starving. We haven't had a meal, a good square meal, among us since the last cotton crop was picked. Pa is thinking of pulling out in that jalopy he bought for $16 in 1930. Ma is taken down with either a cold or another baby. Like Miss Gladys says, I have 90 chances out of 100 of going to prison and staying there, off and on, the rest of my life. I have 60 chances out of 100 of being an itinerant fruit picker. I got a fifty-fifty chance of dying before I grow up.

And what happens? Miss Gladys and Mr. Romney have a yen to adopt a child. They meet Pa and they come out to our tent with him and see the rest of the family. And they pick me out as the best looking of the whole family, and they bring me to Hollywood on a six months' trial.

These were not his thoughts.

The Principal Characters in "The Gilded Cage"

OLIVER SPERRY, who jumps from poverty to riches when adopted by two movie stars. It is all very pretty, but Oliver would much prefer the old life and hustling food for the family.

They were as close as he could get to a word-for-word transcription of something he had heard Miss Gladys tell a group of movie picture friends in her living room as she explained the coming of Oliver into their home.

Some of her words occurred to him again, those about his being the best looking one of the whole family. Miss Gladys was certainly cock-eyed about that. There were at least five of the kids who were better looking than he. What did she mean by saying he was good looking? He walked over to the dresser and looked into the mirror to see if he could find out for himself.

He saw a boy with brown hair that stuck up endways all over his head, blue eyes, a snub nose and a mouth whose teeth needed straightening. The whole face was covered with freckles. He pulled his nose up further and made the motion of spitting into his freckle-filled face and then he realized he was hungry.

He went into the bathroom which adjoined his sleeping chamber and took down a tooth brush. On this he spread a generous squirt of tooth paste because he liked the taste of it. He put the tooth brush back daintily and picked up a wash rag, ran about half a glassful of water in the basin and dipped the end of the washrag into it. With this, he went over his face, more in gesture than anything else. He carefully saw to it that he did not dampen his ears or the area back of them. He grabbed a towel and rubbed his face vigorously, as if to make up for what he had neglected with the washrag. He whirled around at the whisper of a sound behind him and said: "Oh, good morning, Miss Gladys."

GLADYS MAYNE!

What he saw was a shapely vision of blonde loveliness whose picture you've seen in homey love scenes 50 times if you are anywhere from six years old to 80. Gladys Mayne! She was dressed in shorts and a halter and she looked ravishing—but not to Oliver. Oliver kind of respectfully resented Gladys. It was not because she had invaded the privacy of his bathroom. Having been brought up as he was by Ma and Pa who inhabited shacks, tents, sheds, railroad cars and even the wide-open spaces as they dutifully brought one child a year into this world he never had heard of anything even remotely resembling privacy. No. It was because she had probably been standing behind him he didn't know how long, but certainly long enough to know that he didn't do right by his face with that washrag. Girls were such sneaks. They were always sneaking up behind you and then blowing the whistle. Gladys now blew the whistle.

"Good morning, Oliver," she said in beautifully, carefully spaced English. "You mustn't be afraid of soiling those washrags," she went on, "we must have thousands of them. Will you try it again?"

Oliver tried it again, this time with no fooling, and soon he was ready to go down to breakfast. Miss Gladys left him to have a whirl at tennis. Nobody was in the dining-room so he went right through it into the kitchen. There he found the help, dressed most informally, seated around three tables eating their breakfast. He said, "Hello, how's about some breakfast." He saw Jordan, the butler, slipping into his coat and his heart sank because he knew what Jordan would say. Jordan said it. "Master Oliver, if you will go into the dining room, I will serve you personally and at once."

"Good morning, Oliver," she said in beautiful, carefully spaced English. "You mustn't be afraid of soiling the washrags."

So Oliver had his breakfast in the dining-room alone, and, gosh, how he hated to eat alone. When he was with the family—before he had been rescued—he never ate alone. If he dug up something to eat, he called one of his brothers or sisters and shared it with them. After breakfast, he strolled out to the tennis court and watched Miss Gladys playing. He liked Miss Gladys. If she'd only unloosen and be regular and let him do what he wanted, he could be crazy about her. But she wouldn't. If he just said he wanted to do something, it was out with Miss Gladys. "That's vulgar," she'd say, or "Don't eat with your knife, Oliver. You use a knife to cut food. The fork brings it to the mouth. Try it again."

TOO RESPECTFUL

She was playing with her physical trainer and Oliver got tired of watching him pull his shots so that Miss Gladys would always win after a love point. He strolled away from there and went over to the garage and watched the mechanics. He said, "Hello" all around and they said, "Hello" back but they didn't have any heart in it. They were too respectful.

He saw Mr. Romney striking out for the first tee of the private golf course. You've seen Mr. Romney, too, if you're a picture fan. He plays romantic leads, often with Miss Gladys and in real life he is Miss Gladys' husband. He was very handsome and he had a deep voice and he was very nice to Oliver. He invited him to play with him. But Oliver was pretty bad at golf and he didn't like it. Besides, it took a lot of walking and Oliver had been brought up in the belief that anybody was a sucker to walk unless he was going some place. So he refused Mr. Romney's invitation just as politely as Mr. Romney had extended it and he walked away over to the other side of the estate and sat under a eucalyptus tree.

Right then, he got into the worst set of the blues he ever had had. He figured he was all alone in the world. Next week, Miss Gladys and Mr. Romney would adopt him. They would bring him down to the Los Angeles courthouse and they would sign a lot of papers. And so would he. They would produce the releases Ma and Pa had signed. These releases promised that they would never attempt in the future to try and regain custody over "the said Oliver Sperry" because they had renounced and relinquished all rights to him in favor of Mr. Romney and Miss Gladys.

Oliver thought that they mustn't think much of him or they would never have let him go. He didn't see why they didn't like him as much as they did any of their other kids. But they didn't or they wouldn't have turned him over to Miss Gladys and Mr. Romney.

"I'LL MISS HIM"

He took himself in hand. He told himself that there wasn't a kid in the United States that wouldn't give his eye teeth for a chance to be adopted by a couple of moving picture actors. And look at all the big actors and actresses he had met since he came to this place And they were all swell and they were swell to him, too. But none of this did him any good. He just wished he was back with Ma and Pa and the kids. He wished he was out rustling his grub and bringing whatever he earned to Ma and throwing it into her lap.

He looked up when he heard the loudest noise coming up the road. It sounded familiar. It was. It was the old Sperry jalopy of a truck. Pa was driving and Ma was sitting beside him and he knew the kids were all in the back of it. He sat quite still till it got abreast of him. It wasn't going very fast. He ran out and climbed in the back of it. He pushed his hand through a hole in the cab and dropped two dollars into Ma's lap. Pa was for stopping the truck and sending him back to Miss Gladys. But Oliver said, "No, Pa, to h—— with it. I don't like being a rich kid." So Pa went right along.

Miss Gladys and Mr. Romney were quite worried until they got his note thanking them for everything but saying he wanted to stay with his family. Then Miss Gladys said, "I'll miss him. He reminds me so much of Tom, my brother. You know, Rom. The one who is always writing me for money. Tom would never wash his neck either. That Oliver's a good kid. He'll make his mark some day."

THE END.

LICENSING BOARD for the City of Boston. Transfer No. 36, March 22, 1940.—Notice is hereby given, under Chapter 138 of the General Laws, that Diogracio Consolmagno, as Cafe Amalfi, has applied for a transfer of All Alcoholic license to sell alcoholic beverages as a Restaurant, from 8-A Westland Avenue to 10 Westland Avenue, and rear entrance for stock only, in said Boston, in four rooms, first floor, basement for office, kitchen and stock-room, of said building. MARY E. DRISCOLL, EDWIN D. GALLAGHER, EDWARD M. RICHARDSON, Licensing Board.

LICENSING BOARD for the City of Boston. Transfer No. 32, March 22, 1940.—Notice is hereby given, under Chapter 138 of the General Laws, that Majestic Liquor & Wine Co., Inc., Samuel Levey, President, Treasurer, Manager, has applied for a transfer of All Alcoholic license to sell alcoholic beverages as a Retail Package Goods Store, from 203 Tremont Street to 623 Boylston Street, in said Boston, in one room, first floor; cellar for stock only, of said building. MARY E. DRISCOLL, EDWIN D. GALLAGHER, EDWARD M. RICHARDSON, Licensing Board.

Oh, What a Hand, And What a Man!

Instead of collapsing, whooping or jumping on the table as most people do when they get a singleton ted hand, Johnson worked himself up to seven spades, doubled and redoubled.

It was worth 480 points, plus 1500 for a grand slam and 150 honors.

MONEY TO LOAN

Loans for Easter shopping or to pay old bills

You can get a cash loan of $25 to $300 here on the friendly basis that has made Personal Finance Co. America's choice from Coast to Coast.

How to Reduce Your Monthly Payments

By "lumping" all your bills or credit accounts into one place, you can usually cut way down the total of your monthly payments.

Ask No Favors

You don't have to ask others to sign with you here. Nor do you "sign over" your wages. Friends or employers are not notified.

Simple to Get

If you can repay small monthly instalments—which you select to fit your purse—you should not hesitate to see us for a loan at once.

AUSTEN LAKE

EVENING AMERICAN, FRIDAY, MARCH 22, 1940

Bruins Rise From Ruins Varnish the Rangers

THERE, LOVING READERS, WAS A GAME TO warm the cockles of Boston's cow-bell ringing, fish-horn tooting, rubbish-throwing public. It ended 4 to 2 for the Bruins, with the patrons' eyeballs and tonsils raw from glaring through the smoke-fogged cavern and yelling a full three hours' worth. It was a blend of pure, scientific hockey mixed with something out of a hasheesh dream, a Swiss cuckoo clock and psychopathic ward.

AUSTEN LAKE

The Rangers started hostilities by firing everything but their false teeth at Frankie Brimsek and sending everybody up the ice but Mrs. Roosevelt and the Youth Congress. And presently the customers said "Uh-O" as Big Babe Pratt, the New York defenseman with a Girl Scout's face and a dock walloper's body, was given time for something awful. That left the Rangers five men to the Bruins six.

Well, sir! Hardly had they said "Uh-O" when Neil Colville sauntered up the right bank, free and easy, and slithered the plug over to Brother Mac, who was going hellity-hoop, and the red exit light went on. This lit a torch in some galleryite's soul, so he heaved his drinking bottle at the Rangers' coop, hit an innocent gent, named Dick Williams, on the shoulder and brought Lester Patrick gyrating and shouting for the cops to frisk the entire gathering for foreign substances like hunks of concrete and spare auto parts.

It was a filthy act of a moronic mind. For latest report has Williams' left arm paralyzed.

* * *

AS SOON AS THE GAME RESUMED BILL COWLEY skimmed across the face of the Rangers' goal close enough to scrape Dave Kerr's ear off, and Davey screamed like a 5 o'clock factory whistle. So, quick as scat, the boys chose up sides like the Alpha chapter of teamers fighting the Brotherhood of Steamfitters, and as pleasurable a fight as has been seen in the old depot since the night that Danno O'Mahoney's bucket crew assaulted the four Dusek brothers.

Finally, when the officials unscrewed everybody's limbs and sorted out the parts, they sent two each of the Bruins and Rangers, like the Scriptural story of Noah's Ark, to the cooler, where Uncle Arthur Ross, the Bruins' Hamlet, was waiting with a curdled expression and a camel's hair coat. Uncle Arthur just glowered at the boys with his set-in-cement look, and the two N. Y. prisoners just made pairs of moose antlers with their fingers and twiddled them suggestively.

Well, land sakes, you'd've thought there was enough mayhem for the minute. But when the three-handed game resumed, with the boys giving the rubber little gooses and nudges, Lynn Patrick and Jack Crawford started thwacking each other with their shillalahs. So the only member of the Patrick family that wasn't in the jug was Papa Lester, who just sat with his snoot like the tied top of a sugar sack.

Statistics for that first period show that 13 players were jugged for sins tanging from beating each other over the pot to snatching coattails. It required 52 minutes to play. That gives a rough idea!

* * *

IN THE SECOND PERIOD THE BRUINS CAME out pretty peevish and settled into gang formation, bulldogging the Rangers by sticking out their fundements and inserting their sticks between people's legs and generally making Goalie Kerr busier than a veterinary obstetrician in a rabbit hospital.

After a little of this Referee Mickey Ion handed Babe Pratt a ticket for parking his pants in Milt Schmidt's face, and again the crowd said "Uh-O." Only this time Herb Cain, Art Jackson and Flash Hollett went down in a company front, handing the puck back and forth like it was the last cup cake at a ladies' bridge. After they passed it around for the fourth time, and everybody had refused politely, Hollett said, "Shucks, if nobody else wants it," and gave it a shove. So the exit light blinked again and the score was one-each.

The next Bruins' goal came almost as an afterthought of the first. Flash Hollett had been jailed and was sitting with his chin on the rail when Jackson sneaked one out of a scrimmage, passed it to Cain, who blinged an angular shot that squirted through a knot-hole in Kerr's wooden leg.

And that was where a vulgar rinkside spectator expectorated at Muzz Patrick, who made a mad rush and tried to climb the screen. So the cops were called again and elbowed the vulgarian away. Nice party, wot?

* * *

THE THIRD BRUIN GOAL CAME NEAR THE END of the second period, when Woody Dumart, the child protege, winged away in a big letter S. It was his own idea, so the rest of the team just leaned on their hoe-handles and watched him with amused indulgence. But pretty soon he was around left end and in coffin corner, where he banged it in before Kerr could spider out. Kerr insisted that it didn't go in, but had bounced from the back wall and through a rent in the fishnets. But the red bulb stayed lit like a drunkard's nose, and the scoreboard said, Bruins 3, Rangers 1.

The Rangers got one more in the third period when Dutch Hiller stole the puck and skated it almost down Brimsek's throat and for 10 minutes you could hear the crowd swallowing concertedly to keep its collective heart down as the Rangers volleyed and thundered, and Brimsek ragdolled his padded person fit to twitch his joints loose. But finally Jackson, Wiseman and Cain, whom Uncle Art Ross picked up at some hockey rummage sale recently, formed a three-cornered quadrille, and Jackson stuffed No. 4 in, and there was not much to choose between the shine of the red light over the Rangers' cage and the crimson glory of Lester Patrick's jowls as they dripped down over his collar like melted tallow from a Christmas candle. That was all!

BRUINS SQUARE SERIES BUT MAY LOSE MEL HILL

There's no telling how that wheel of fortune is going to turn in those Stanley Cup playoffs. Only yesterday morning the Rangers were topheavy favorites to eliminate the Bruins in Series A for the famed old mug and this morning the B's were quoted a 7 to 5 choice to advance to the finals by eliminating the Rangers in this best four out of seven series.

This optimism is based on the nearly unbelievable comeback of the Bruins in caging their 4 to 2 victory and deadlocking the series with a win apiece.

But these odds, although propee on the Bruins' showing in the second affair, may shift again by nightfall.

HILL INJURY QUESTION

There is a big question mark woven around Mel Hill, plucky little right winger who had to be helped off the ice in the first period after he was kicked in the ankle as a wild melee was raging. It looks as though there may be a fracture.

An X-ray this afternoon was to tell the story.

If there is a fracture, he's out for the year. If it's a sprain, he may be back in action by the fifth game.

Hill's loss will hurt greatly.

This is no reflection on Flash Hollett, a grand, all-around hockey player, who did a swell job as a relief man. It was Flash who tallied the first Boston goal to put the Bruins back in the ball game, but Mel, who is a natural right-winger, works much more smoothly with Bill Cowley and Roy Conacher.

HOLLETT CAN STAR

But why worry until there is an official report from the doctors.

If Hill is out, Hollett, who played during the playoffs last year in very effective fashion may again rise to the heights and produce the brand of hockey he displayed last night.

Only last Tuesday night these same Bruins were outskated, outsmarted, outscored and so completely outplayed that it looked like the Rangers in four straight, yet two days later the Rossmen banged home a 4-to-2 victory before 16,202 wild eyed fans, to deadlock series "A" for the famed Stanley Cup.

And no victory could have been sweeter in a game that had about everything that has ever occured on ice.

HIT BY BOTTLE

Fights galore, thrills aplenty, a mixup at regular intervals and sandwiched in was plenty of swell hockey. There was even a scrap

Cont'nued on Page 45, Column 1

Speed-Ray Ires Ranger

The Bruins-Rangers game was delayed for a few minutes in the first period at the Garden while Art Coulter of the Rangers complained about the stroboscope which provides the light for the brilliant SPEED-RAY photographs which are a new and exclusive feature of the Daily Record-Evening American-Sunday Advertiser.

Referee Ion inspected the light at the east end of the rink and refused to listen to Coulter's claim that it should be removed.

TOO FAST TO NOTICE

Inasmuch as the SPEED-RAY travels fast enough to freeze action at 1-100,000th of a second and is almost invisible the complaint of the Ranger captain was said to have been made because they suspicioned a plot, maybe an attempt to handicap the Rangers in the game, rather than a protest against the SPEED-RAY.

As matter off act a conventional type flash bulb is temporarily blinding and causes some persons to blink for a brief period.

BABIES DON'T MIND

But the Speed-Ray has been used directly in front of babies, and it doesn't even make them blink. It not only is NOT bothersome, but is actually harmless to the eyes of anyone, athlete or otherwise.

The SPEED-RAY has been used at a number of hockey games and other sporting events in which the athletes have never made any protest and upon being interviewed after the game said they never saw any light, because it traveled so fast.

Sox Rookie Pleads For Chance to Hurl Against Terrymen

By HERB FINNEGAN

The rookie southpaw flouts all baseball's conventions. He's been eating with veterans since the first day in camp; he wisecracks with coaches; he ridicules A. L. umpires to their faces. You'd think he had been around as long as Lefty Grove.

Mickey, you see, once worked out with the Giants. That was in '37, when he was pitching sandlot ball on Long Island.

MICKEY HARRIS

BLASTED BILL TERRY

Tom Clark sent him to the Giants' morning school at the Polo Grounds. Dolph Luque and Frank Snyder were the instructors. Mickey was working in a Brooklyn dairy at the time, got a two-months leave of absence.

He reported faithfully every morning at the Polo Grounds. He chagged flies in the outfield. He pitched to batters. But he never got a chance to pitch to Snyder, and he was getting nowhere rapidly. He not only was getting no income but he was paying his own carfare to and from the park.

Next day Mickey waited for Terry. The Giants manager grimaced at him as if Mickey were trying to make a touch and told him he better look for a job.

So two-fisted Mickey promptly up and told Mr. Terry what he thought of him and his entire outfit in sulphuric fashion.

"Aw, I can't use that language in Lent," he grinned.

VENGEANCE HIS GOAL

Mickey's pride wasn't wounded because he had seen Frank McCormick, Cincinnati first baseman, also chased out of the park by Terry, but he vowed vengeance. He went back to work and back to the sandlots. And the very next game he pitched he was signed by Jack Egan, Red Sox scout.

He was sent ahead to Clarksdale in '39 but last year he was lifted to Scranton in the Eastern League where he won 19, lost 4.

The Sox had planned to send him to Louisville this year, but they needed pitchers so badly they decided to take Mickey down South. And it looks as if he's going to stick.

When the Sox played the Giants at Winter Haven, Mickey warmed up directly in front of Mr. Terry and opened the eyes of the dour pilot.

Well, the Giants and the Sox play again here Sunday, and Mickey has asked permission to work against them.

"And I hope Terry gets up as a pinch hitter," he prayed.

MICKEY COURAGEOUS

Mickey's no "Wise Guy." But he's got plenty of moxie, and apparently plenty on the ball. You won't find his knees quaking whether he's facing the Yanks or the Barsanti A. C.

He may not always say "Mam" to the ladies, and he may not say "Sir" to the veterans, but good manners don't make good ball clubs.

Wasn't it Horace who said:

Yawkey O. K.'s Sarasota for '41

SARASOTA, Fla., March 22—Tom Yawkey, owner of the Red Sox, announced this morning that the club would return to Sarasota next year for its annual spring training.

It will be the ninth straight season at Sarasota for the Sox, who first came here in 1933 when Bob Quinn was president and Marty McManus manager.

The field, considered second only to the Tigers camp in Lakeland, will be further embellished next year with steel grandstand, a new clubhouse and higher fence as part of a governmental project, it is understood.

4 More Winners For Dave Wilson At Tropical

Dave Wilson, Boston American-Sunday Advertiser handicapping ace, continued to set a torrid pace at Tropical Park, coming up with four more winners yesterday, on the eight race card.

Wilson's winners were Elaana, $4.20; Arched, $9.30; Ship Biscuit, $3.80, and Parl-Ernest, $8.40.

The handicapping king got a tough break in a couple of races. In the fifth he picked Night Tide to win and Double B. second. Night Tide finished second to Double B. in a close photo finish.

In the sixth Blair's second choice, White Hot, scampered to an easy win, returning $8.90 straight.

Wilson's three top horses are invariably well up at the finish line. For day in day out consistency, he must be ranked the "tops" in his profession.

RIDE WITH WILSON!

QUINN TURNS DOWN TERRY AGAIN

By BILL GRIMES

BRADENTON, Fla., March 22—Two years ago, Manager Bill Terry of the New York Giants offered a small fortune to Pres. Bob Quinn for Tony Cuccinello. But, unfortunately for Mr. Terry, Bob Quinn doesn't sell ball players.

WOULD HAVE WON FLAG

If Bill Terry had been able to talk Bob Quinn out of Tony Cuccinello two years ago, the Giants would have won the pennant. Terry, like Bill McKechnie, is sold on veterans. He will not take a gamble on youngsters.

Bill Terry is plenty worried over the Giants. He knows that he has a bad ball club. And, moreover, he realizes full well that if he takes a losing club back to New York, he's going to get the "business" from the fans as well as the scribes, who have been gunning for a chance to hop on him with both feet.

So Terry is after Tony Cuccinello again.

BEST TEAM PLAYER

Terry believes that Tony Cuccinello would round out his infield. But President Bob Quinn has again refused to sell Cuccinello. Tony is one of the best team players ever identified with baseball. He has always been willing to sacrifice himself in order to benefit the club. And he is a fixture with the Bees as long as Bob Quinn has money that is offered for his services.

Since the Bees have been here Pres. Horace C. Stoneham and Bill Terry have hounded Bob Quinn. They want to make a trade with the Bees. But, strange as it may seem, the Giants haven't any players that Terry would be willing to trade that would help the Bees.

NO PRICE TAG

When the Giants played here last Monday, Terry made another attempt to get Cuccinello. He went so far as to tell Bob Quinn to put his own price tag on the veteran infielder. Bob turned him down cold again and made it very plain that even Horace C. Stoneham hasn't enough money to purchase Tony Cuccinello.

GOOD SKI SURFACE 'TIL JUNE

By TAP GOODENOUGH

SUPERB SPRING SKIING IS IN THE OFFING! Snow depths are now measured in yards atop Cannon Mountain in Franconia Notch and at famed Tuckerman's Ravine in Pinkham Notch; while Pico Peak and Mount Mansfield in Vermont report plenty of powder. Hence, skiing is insured at these regions at late as June! So don't put away your hickorys, skiers; the best running in many seasons is at hand!

The trek into Tuckerman's snow bowl will start soon, and as the sun grows warmer by degrees a shirt-sleeved army will invade this tempting terrain, swarming like flies in a saucer of milk over the floor and up the sides of the ravine . . . Some will wear shorts, others will even strip to the waists as they enjoy suntan ski sprees . . Happy gals and boys "playing the lap of God" . . .

Many prefer late skiing on Cannon Mountain where that Magic Carpet, the Aerial Tramway, eliminates the long climb one must make to reach the ravine. And the Sherburne trail at best is primarily a racing course, too narrow for the crowds that jam its angular curves in the spring. The Cannon Mountain trails are much wider and safer, traversed by a well-trained ski patrol . . .

SPRING SKI TIPS: Corn snow will appear any day now, so get your Klister, the best wax for this kind of snow, and have it ready to apply to your boards . . .

Be sure your sealskins or creepers are with you for that long climb up the trail . . . Sun glasses or shields are necessary now, as is Skol to prevent severe burns . . Small packs are handy at this season for carrying lunches, waxes, skins, and other items . . .

Take plenty of extra clothing with you, despite the apparent warmth in the air. At high altitudes, the temperature can drop suddenly, and blizzards are common in the spring . . . Strive for safety more than ever, and practice control. On lower trails, the cover will get thinner, exposing rocks and stumps . . . Think of the other fellow! . .

▼ ▼ ▼

SCOUTING SKI SPOTS: We visited the Uncanoonuc Mountains at Goffstown, N. H. for the first time in years last week-end and were delighted to find the trails in good condition with plenty of snow. There were only about 100 skiers here, although this site is a mere 60 miles from Boston. An inclined railway conveys crowds to the top, where a choice of trails is available. The USC trail was fast and sporty as was the West Side Trail

'The Angel' Flies Again

The Angel will fly into his toughest mat test next Thursday night at the Arena when he meets ex-champion Dan O'Mahony, who has been comebacking at a terrific rate.

The colorful bout headlines Paul Bowser's grapple program and will include several attractive prelims

The Angel, unhandsome wrestler who has beaten five straight foes here, will be good indeed if he pins Danno. The larger Irish matman has been campaigning with success in the Midwest

PINBOYS ROLL FOR DIAMOND

By PINFALL

Pinboys step into the candlepin limelight for the first time in New England championship history in the very near future.

In recognition of the bowling's unsung heroes, the American-Record-Advertiser fifth annual diamond medal championsaips which open at the Huntington Club Alleys a week from tomorrow is going to have a whole set of prizes for the pinboys.

This is really an "added starter" class in view of the fact that it has never been held in previous championships.

The winner will receive a beautiful diamond studded medal, while gold, silver and bronze medals will go to the runner ups.

Boston pinboys will roll mornings while those from out of the city will be able to roll until 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Since there is no provision for the boys on the entry blanks, all they have to do is enclose a note with the blank stating that they wish to take part in the "Pinboy Championships," and their entries will be duly recorded.

These unsung heroes of the alleys know perhaps more than anybody else the vital part luck or call it "breaks" has to do with the winning of any championship.

They know that any bowler with a fair degree of accuracy and ability can actually take one of the coveted diamond medal championships.

In fact Bill Haynes, president of the Lever Brothers Bowling League, figures that there's 20 per cent luck in the candlepin game.

By JACK CONWAY

THERE IS A certain element of luck in the winning of a world's boxing championship. This statement is proved best by the case of Nate Lewis of Chicago who has been managing leading boxers for 39 years.

Included in the list of ring stars who have been piloted by Lewis were Charley White of Chicago, Pal Moore of Memphis, Joe Burman of Chicago and Jock Malone of St. Paul. Any one of these boxers was classy enough to win a world's title, but fate frowned on them when they received their major opportunity.

When White fought Willie Ritchie, at the time world's lightweight champion, he had the title within his grasp when he dropped the Coast favorite to the canvas with a savage left hook to the jaw.

"I was helpless when I went down for a count of nine," Ritchie told me after the bout. "I expected that when I got up that White would rush at me, and knock me out. Instead White stepped back when I regained my feet. He thought I was stalling, and didn't wish to leave an opening for my punch. At the time I couldn't have punched my way out of a paper bag. In another minute my head had cleared and White had lost his chance to become lightweight champion."

Jock Malone was at his peak when Harry Greb was middleweight boss, and Lewis knew that his protege could never conquer the Pittsburgh Windmill. For years Lewis dodged a meeting between Malone and Greb. Nate felt it was better to leave the question of who was the better boxer in doubt.

"Who are you going to pick to win?" Malone asked me the day before the bout.

"I haven't decided yet," I told Jock.

"What is the shortest line between two points?" asked Malone.

"A straight line," I replied.

"That is why I shall beat Walker," went on Malone. "Mickey is a hooker, and so pulls his left hand back. I am a straight puncher, and so will beat Walker to the punch."

I picked Malone to win after this smart size up of the bout.

Lewis Now Manager of Leo Rodak

LEWIS IS MANAGING Leo Rodak, Chicago contender for the lightweight title who clashes with George Salamone of East Boston in a ten-round bout at an Argonne A. A. show at Mechanics Building on next Thursday night. Rodak formerly campaigned as a featherweight. At Providence, Rodak dropped a questionable decision to Joey Archibald in a contest billed for the featherweight championship of the world. Archibald later went on to win world recognition in his class from the various boxing commissions.

Even Archibald's home town Providence newspapers agreed he was fortunate to win from Rodak. Nate Lewis wasn't surprised at the defeat of his protege. Nate felt that the jinx that has followed him for years when he was close to a championship would once more catch up with him.

Since joining the ranks of the lightweights, Rodak has battled with better than average success. He recently won from Sammy Angott of Kentucky whom the National Boxing Association picked as the No. 2 contender for Lou Ambers' lightweight title.

George Salamone, a graduate of the All-America tournaments, has displayed plenty of natural ring ability, and believes he will dispose of Rodak. This is by far the most severe opposition Salamone has been called upon to meet. Rodak is a betting favorite, but the East Boston youth insists he will halt the surge of his Chicago rival.

Random Shots at Target

AS PART OF THE PLAN to develop new track and field athletes in New England, there will be an industrial track and field meet at the Boston Y. M. C. A. tomorrow night . . . The industrial events are as follows: 45-yard run, 300-yard run, 600-yard run, putting 16-pound shot, one-mile run, one-mile walk, 45-yard low hurdles, running high jump . . . The novice events are as follows: 45-yard dash, 600-yard run, two-mile run, running high jump.

W. C. Hultgren at th. Boston Y. M. C. A. says there will not be any entry fee . . . The idea of this meet is to give youngsters an opportunity to compete against athletes of equal ability . . . In the K. of C. and B. A. A. games, there are too many national stars for the average young athlete to have much of a chance of placing . . . Ben Levias of the registration committee of the New England A. A. U. has been one of the leaders in promoting the plan for industrial track meets.

Boston After Dark

By GEORGE HOLLAND

Everybody knew the seal was in town . . . And that may have been part of Mr. Dixon's temporary reverie at the Cocoanut Grove last night when a friend who "knew Lee when" banged him on the back, asked him to have a drink, and popped the vexing question: "And what are you doing in town?"

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: The ad lib strip-tease act which Walter Winchell reports in his column today, with Milton Berle, Rags Ragland, Bert Wheeler and other comedians upsetting the routine of a New York nightclub at a party given Hal Le Roy Sunday night, was dedicated to Georgia Sothern, the leading attraction this week at the Old Howard . . . Georgia has been signed to appear on a coast-to-coast program . . . The point of it is that she has been signed to sing . . . Variety tells of Ann Corio making an appearance before a microphone in Buffalo . . . "and," Cliff Jones asked "Do you sing, Miss Corio?" "Now Cliff," was Ann's answer (reproachfully no doubt), "why should I have to sing?"

REDS' GOALIE 'MAN OF MINUTE'

By the Associated Press

If they gave medals to the heroes of the International-American League hockey play-offs, the veteran Mike Karakas might be stooping shouldered from carrying his around on the front of his blouse.

Mike seems to be the man of the minute for he has personally conducted the Providence Reds to a pair of victories over Indianapolis.

Last night, the Reds made it two straight by clipping the Caps, 4-0.

The other two play-offs, New Haven's Eagles drubbed the Hershey Bears by 3-1, and the Pittsburgh Hornets showed a complete reversal of form to crush the Springfield Indians, 5-1.

BRUINS, RANGERS FROZEN

ABOVE—One for Boston—Art Jackson (No. 18) was too fast for Davey Kerr as he whipped one into the Rangers' nets but he wasn't too fast for SPEED-RAY which catches pictures with the new Edgerton Speed-Ray lamp that freezes action at 1-100,000th of a second. No sport is too fast for it.

BELOW — Speed-Ray freezes Roy Conacher (No. 9) of the Bruins as he just finished a swipe at the puck that lost itself in the overstuffed pads of Davey Kerr, Rangers' goalie. Phil Watson, left, awaits the passout. This picture was taken with the remarkable Speed-Ray lamp, which stops action at 1-100,000th of a second.

FROZEN IN ACTION are Johnny Crawford (No. 6) of the Bruins and Phil Watson (No. 7) of the Rangers as they engage in a stick duel at the Bruins' nets.

ABOVE — Mr. Zero and Speed-Ray ran a tie here and the Rangers were cheated when Frankie Brimsek battered the flying puck from Bryan Hextall away from the strings. Brimsek played one of his best games to hold the flying Rangers from scoring more than two goals while his mates passed Goalie Davey Kerr of the Rangers four times.

Bottle Hits Fan As Bruins Win Wild Battle

between the Patrick brothers and a spectator, and if that wasn't enough some "maniac" threw an empty bottle from the balcony that hit Dick Williams, the N. Y. goal judge on the shoulder—a few inches higher and there might have been a fatality.

But enough of the supplementary action.

The game itself was little short of "terrific." Every goal except the last was tallied with one club a man shy.

In fact the Rangers counted both their goals when they were short-handed as they did on two occasions in the first game in New York. The B's taking their cue from the Blue Shirts did the same once an then hit two more with the Rangers operating with one man in the coop.

GOAL IN FOUR MINUTES

With Phil Watson off, the Rangers put on their forechecking act. Neil Colville stole the plug from Bill Cowley, faked Dit Clapper, passed to his brother, Mac, and there were the Rangers out front less than four minutes after the action started.

It really looked bad but then came that big second period. With Pratt off, Flash Hollet belted Herb Cain's rebound home in 5:45. Then with Hol'ett off for tripping, little Art Jackson sneaked the disc nudged it to Herb Cain and Herbie dented the strings at 8:19. If that wasn't enough our heroes again counted with a man short when the Rangers were nailed flat footed down the ice. Bill Cowley shot the puck to Clapper who sent it along to Dumart who faked a pass, outsmarted Davey Kerr and through the pipes "she" whistled at 8:19.

Even a two goal lead wasn't real security for with Pratt off again, the Rangers went attacking one man short and in trying to clear, Clapper hit Schmidt's skate and there was the puck all alone in front of the net. Alex Shibicky couldn't overlook the invitation—he fondled it gently for a moment and then swished it past Brimsek.

One goal behind and 10 minutes and four seconds to play—how those Rangers went to work—they put on power play after power play and needless to say there was more than one anxious moment until Cain finally grabbed the puck, moved it along to Eddie Wiseman, who laid a perfect pass on Art Jackson's stick. Little Arthur came in all alone, toyed with Davey until Kerr committed himself and then dropped it into pay territory at 18:16—that was final security.

It's all tied up now and with the Bruins as hosts Sunday night, the picture has changed considerably—the Rossmen are now favorites to come home on top.

PENALTIES GALORE!

Rangers' Goalie Pretty Cute

There may not have been a lot of real hockey shown in the first period of that second play-off game but there was everything else . . . Mickey Ion and Donie MacFayden called 13 penalties totaling 38 minutes—four of them were majors . . . there were five fights and if that wasn't enough, a fan threw a bottle from the stands that came near decapitating Dick Williams, N. Y. goal judge . . . It hit him on the shoulder and temporarily paralyzed his left arm . . . He had to be helped from the Garden.

* * *

It was Davey Kerr who started the trouble . . . With the Bruins pressing, he hit Bill Cowley across the back of the legs with his stick, and Cowboy, who had jammed with Kerr here before, warned the Rangers' goalie to cut it out, but Kerr did it again and Bill gave him the butt end of his stick—then the fun started . . Muzz Patrick belted Mel Hill and Dit Clapper and Art Coulter started wrestling—when the jam was cleared Cowley, Coulter, Patrick and Hill took majors . . . Nothing happened to Kerr.

* * *

Mel Hill went down heavily when he was kicked in the ankle during the fracas, and there may be a fracture there . . . he will be X-rayed this afternoon.

* * *

After this free for all settled down nicely, Herb Cain checked Lynn Patrick into the boards and Babe Pratt went after Cain—the officials sent Pratt and Crawford off for minors . . . what Crawford did, nobody knows . . . scrap number three was started by Jake Shewchuk who drove Bryan Hextall into the boards but that ended before damage was done.

* * *

It took 52 minutes to play the first period . . . the second session was mild with only six penalties called and there was just one in the third . . . late in second period during a struggle near the corner of the screen, a fan took a swipe at Lynn Patrick and Lynn gracefully responded by trying to carve him with his stick but the offender ducked nicely . . . then Mr Phan expectoriated sweetly at Lynn and Brother Muzz went on a rampage the gendarmes escorted Mr. Phan out and peace reigned.

* * *

A new sprinkler for fresh ice between the periods was introduced and it seemed to work O. K.

* * *

Those Bruins are going to be tough to lick from now on out.

Vivolo Fights Monday Night In Arena Ring

The Irish-American A. A. resumes its boxing shows at the Arena Monday night. The biffers have had a two-week layoff since the New Englands and are anxious for ring warfare.

The card Monday night consists of six classes, 118, 126, 135, 147 and 160 pounds and heavyweights.

This boxing show is open to all registered A. A. U. performers in New England. Boys may register with J. Frank Facey, 36 Prospect st., Cambridge. All entries must be filed with Tom Kanaly at the Arena, where further information regarding the show can be obtained.

Several leading amateur boxers will battle in Monday night's show. In addition the offering will serve as a good workout for New England boxers who have been selected to represent this section in the nationals at the Garden on April 8, 9 and 10.

Among entries received today were those of William DeBarros, Onset, 118; Manuel Roderick, Falmouth, 126; John Krug, Jr., Onset, lightweight; Fred Howard of Haverhill, Arthur Hill of Haverhill, John Teixiera of East Wareham and Mike Cocozza, Haverhill, 147; Lou Vivolo of Boston, state champion, 160.

Puett Electrical Gate at 'Gansett

PAWTUCKET, R. I., March 22 (INS)—The first Puett electrical starting gate had been received at Narragansett Park horse race track today preparatory to opening of the spring meeting April 17.

The gate, 60 feet long, has stalls for 14 horses. It is expected to reduce starting time of races to less than a minute.

Argonne Shifts Bouts to March 29

The Argonne A. A. has put its boxing show over to Friday, March 29. The Howell King-Coley Welch fight has been put over one day to Friday, April 5. With the ice playoffs over, this will give the Tripe A. club a clear field for that week.

Another 10 rounder was added to the show for March 29, at Mechanics Building. Lloyd Marshall, California, will meet Gainger Lewis of Richmond, Va.

All Even!

In fast, furious and belligerent battle at Boston Garden, Hub's Bruins take measure of New York's Rangers by score of 4-2 . . . and even Stanley Cup series. These remarkable pictures, taken with Speed-Ray lamp at 1-100,000 of a second, freeze action as (above) Ranger goalie Dave Kerr comes to the blue line to stop rush of Bill Cowley of Bruins (10) while Roy Conacher (9) speeds to assist. Below, Goalie Kerr again smears scoring attempt as Herb Cain (4) of Bruins tries in vain as Forward Art Jackson (18) watches.
